Manpower Group Raises Estimate of 1943 Needs To Total of 65,000,000

Previous Forecasts Increased by 2,500,000 with Boost Attributable to Greater Needs of Agriculture, Lend-Lease and Supply; 17,500,000 Now Engaged in War Industry

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—The acuteness of the manpower problem facing the nation in 1943 was emphasized today when the War Manpower Commission estimated that a total of 65,000,000 workers will be needed in full-time employment and the armed services by the end of that year.

These estimates added 2,500,000 to previous official forecasts that the total required would be 62,500,000.

While there was no change in the estimate that 20,000,000 would be needed in war industry alone, commission statisticians explained that the 1943 figure was based on the assumption that there would be a ten per cent increase in output per worker.

WMC Chairman Paul V. McNutt, said at a press conference that the 2,500,000 expansion in the estimate of total military and labor needs was attributable to greater needs of "agriculture, lend-lease and supply."

17,500,000 in War Work
Although he declined a full explanation, he did say he would "go as far as necessary" to give agriculture all the workers needed to plant and harvest the crops called for by the 1943 farm program.

The WMC chief said that the number of persons engaged in war industry had grown from 6,900,000 to 17,500,000 during 1942 while the number in non-war industry had dropped from 29,200,000 to 21,100,000.

Commission statisticians said that as many as 9,000,000 might have to be added to the total full-time labor and military force during next year, and said this might be accomplished by:

Drawing into the force 4,000,000 persons, mostly women, who have never worked before, and 70,000 of the approximately 1,700,000 now unemployed.

Transferring about 2,800,000 men and women to more essential work than they are now performing.

May Lengthen Work Week

French Somaliland Is Made Fighting French Ally

Andre Bayardelle Is Sent to Jibuti as Governor of Colony

By ALFRED E. WALL

LONDON, Dec. 29 (AP)—French Somaliland was formally made a fighting French ally today by General De Gaulle's National Committee and it announced tonight that Andre Bayardelle already had been sent to Jibuti as governor to administer the resources of the East African colony in behalf of the United Nations.

It was the last French African possession to be saved from Vichy—except for contested Tunisia, where the issue remains in doubt.

De Gaulle's committee, warning up more and more toward a union of arms and resources with the new French African administration of Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, said the acquisition of Somaliland brings over also about a division of troops garrisoned there.

General Paul Le Gentilhomme, fighting French National Commissioner for Madagascar and the Indian Ocean, arrived at Jibuti to confer with Brig.-General Dupont, who signed the agreement whereby Somaliland turns from Vichy to the United Nations.

Fighting French officials here said a garrison will be maintained in Somaliland "to insure defense of this strategically important Red Sea territory."

French Somaliland's importance lies in its strategic position on the narrow of the southern entry into the Red Sea and it always was a barrier to Mussolini's now collapsed conquest of Ethiopia.

Jibuti is the railroad for all Ethiopia and as long as it remained in hostile French hands it stood as a toll-gate before all of Mussolini's winnings in East Africa.

British Review Says Axis Flood "Turning to Ebb"

Third Annual Report of War Office Is Highly Optimistic

LONDON, Wednesday, Dec. 30 (AP)—The Allied invasion of North Africa and Russia's great second winter offensive have blasted Germany's hopes of enjoying a "creative pause" during the cold months, the British War Office asserted today in its third annual review of the war.

Linking the British Eighth Army's success in Libya with the Tunisian campaign, the Russian offensive and the Japanese failure to oust the Americans from the Solomons, the highly-optimistic review declared:

"Not merely was the Oriental partner of the Axis fully occupied and on the defensive in his own sphere at the year's end, but the European members of the Axis were themselves on the defensive."

The year 1942 was declared to have marked a "significant turning point" in the war on land—the passing of the general strategic initiative from the Axis to the United Nations.

Axis Flood "Turning to Ebb"

The first signs that the Axis flood "might be turning to ebb" came Aug. 31, the review said, when Marshal Erwin Rommel tried an unsuccessful offensive in Egypt, but it was not until the night of Oct. 23, when Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth Army struck the Germans and Italians at El Alamein that "the United Nations may be said to have begun demonstrably to capture the initiative."

The defeat of the Africa Corps, the war office proudly proclaimed, showed the world the first results of Britain's three-year struggle to create an army trained and equipped to fight the Germans on even terms.

Today, it asserted, British infantry is a "mobile master of varied and effective weapons, confident that it has the measure of the enemy."

"It is no longer is the plodding, mud-encumbered PBI (poor bloody infantry) of Passchendaele nor the ineffectual gallants swept back by the weight of metal to the beaches of Dunkerque."

Discussing the campaign in Tunisia, the review affirmed that there had been "just a chance" that the vanguard of the British First Army, if it swept in fast enough from Algeria, might have been able to seize Tunis and Bizerte before the enemy became too strongly entrenched.

Advance Units Withdrawn
Indeed, it pointed out, advance columns in the opening phases reached a point almost midway between Tunis and Bizerte and, aided by some American armored units, captured an enemy airfield at Djedeida, only twelve miles from Tunis, and destroyed forty Axis planes on the ground.

SEN. KIMBLE LEADS OPPOSITION TO STATE WAR COUNCIL PLAN

Allegany Counting Says Bill Would Nullify People's Rights

BALTIMORE, Dec. 29 (AP)—Members of the Legislative council voiced strong opposition today to a proposal which would give Governor O'Connor and a war council authority to suspend statutes considered detrimental to the war effort, despite exhaustive testimony on behalf of the measure by defense leaders.

The war council proposal was one of several emergency defense recommendations made by the governor's War Emergency Legislation Committee of the Maryland Council of Defense. The other proposals

British Reported Baffling Japanese At Rathedaung

Wavell's Army Appears To Be Closing Down on Strategic City

By LEWIS HAWKINS

LONDON, Dec. 29 (AP)—A clash between British and Japanese troops at Rathedaung in Burma, only twenty-five miles north of Akyab, indicated to military observers here today that Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell's Indian Army was closing down firmly on that strategic city.

In addition to depriving the Japanese of a valuable base from which to bomb India, the capture of Akyab would give the Allies a good airfield from which to punish the enemy along the Irrawaddy river from Rangoon to Mandalay.

It was emphasized, however, that the clash at Rathedaung probably represented no more than a "large scale raid" by Wavell's troops and that the main British offensive to recapture Burma and reopen the Burma road into Free China obviously had not yet begun.

Observers were inclined to discount a report by the Axis-controlled Paris radio that British troops already had penetrated the Chindwin river valley east of the Chin hills, which lie across a possible invasion road toward Mandalay. Recent communications from New Delhi, however, have mentioned vigorous patrol action in the Chin hills.

In a statement today Wavell said at New Delhi merely that his army was "getting every day into a better position to fight the Japanese consistently and successfully."

He explained that, theoretically, the Japanese occupied the whole of Burma up to the Chindwin river, but that in the recent hot weather they had withdrawn from the Kubo valley, the tributary of the Chindwin, and that since then the area had been in British hands.

"We did not live in it," Wavell explained, "although whenever we

TOUHY GANG IS CAPTURED IN ELABORATE FBI TRAP

Two Aides Slain as Federal Agents Round Up Fugitive Gangsters

CHICAGO, Dec. 29 (AP)—An ingenious trap, devised after weeks of careful planning and operated by the nation's top ranking federal agents, snapped shut today on Roger Touhy and Basil "The Owl" Banghart.

The coup and a similar snare sprung six hours earlier resulted in the capture of Touhy, Banghart and Edward Darlak, brought death via gun battle to James O'Connor and St. Clair McInerney, and completed the roundup of the seven long-term convicts who shot and slugged their way out of the Stateville, Ill., penitentiary eighty days ago.

Thus, in two swift, melodramatic maneuvers, the law smashed the revived "Terrible Touhy" gang—led by FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover as "the most vicious and most dangerous the country has ever had."

Hoover Heads Operations
Hoover, who directed the pick of his "G" man corps in the operations, reported the trap set for Touhy and his two confederates probably was the most elaborate ever arranged.

The time was 5 a. m. The scene was a six-flat building at 5116 Kenmore avenue in a north side residential neighborhood. Touhy, Banghart and Darlak slept in one of the apartments on the first floor. Federal agents waited in a suite across the hall. Others, carrying machine guns and high-powered rifles, were stationed on the roof and across the street.

NEW BOMBER WHICH WOULD DWARF FLYING FORTRESSES IS DISCUSSED

Design Calls for Extended Bombing Range and Heavier Loads

WRIGHT FIELD, O., Dec. 29 (AP)—A design for destruction on an undreamed-of scale was placed on view here today in the model of a bomber which would dwarf the Flying Fortress and the Liberator.

In a "mock-up" of wood, the material center of the army air forces displayed the kind of super-warplane that Lt. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, commanding the army air forces, had in mind when he said recently that "the B-17 and the B-24 are the last of the small bombers."

This specific bomber may never be built—Brig. Gen. F. O. Carroll, chief of the experimental engineering division of the center, explained that it was just a "design study," not a production model. But it revealed the shape of things to come.

The highly-successful American fifty-caliber machine gun, which has enabled the B-17s and B-24s to outshoot enemy interceptors, is mounted in this new design in multiple batteries and in revolutionary turrets.

The design calls for fuel capacity which would vastly extend bombing range, and over this greater distance the plane would carry more than twice the bomb-load of America's present heavy bombers. The bay has space for huge demolition bombs much larger than the present "block busters," or for a large number of smaller bombs of perhaps 2,000 pounds each. There even is room for the largest torpedoes.

This model was one of a series of exhibits in which the technical work of the material center was shown a group of reporters by Brig. Gen. A. W. Vanaman, commanding general here.

In the center's huge new wind tunnel, the world's largest single unit electric induction motor—40,000 horsepower—blasts air through the 20-foot tube at speeds up to 450 miles an hour, giving technicians an exact picture, through the use of models hung in the airstream, of the lift, drag and other aerodynamic characteristics of complete planes, or of particular parts. Elaborate recording devices automatically make permanent records.

Photographic developments was displayed below a placard quoting German Gen. Werner von Fritsch that "the nation with the best aerial reconnaissance will win the war."

Allies Withdraw From Hill near Medjez-El-Bab

Severe Casualties Inflicted on Enemy; Planes Blast Axis Troops

[By The Associated Press]

LONDON, Dec. 29—Allied troops have withdrawn from a hill six miles northeast of Medjez-El-Bab on the road to Tunis "after inflicting severe casualties on the enemy," while Allied fighter planes striking clear across Southern Tunisia blasted and set afire twenty Axis troops and supply trucks near the Libyan frontier, a communique said today.

A delayed dispatch from Southern Tunisia said American troops had raided Maknassy, only about forty miles from the eastern coastal road linking Tunisia with Marshal Rommel's Libyan forces, capturing twenty-one Italians and killing and wounding many others. The mission was completed after sharp street fighting and the reduction of numerous sniper positions.

Berlin acknowledged this threat to its coastal road by announcing that United States troops had rolled into Gafsa, about forty miles west of Maknassy.

French Troops Participate

French troops also were threatening to cut the Axis Tunisian forces into still another segment by continued blows in the Pont-Du-Faïs area, only thirty miles south of Tunis and about the same distance from the Eastern Tunisian Gulf of Hammamet.

French headquarters in Tunisia said that French troops, backed by Allied tanks and planes, had cut an important road south of Pont-Du-Faïs after a fierce dawn battle today, and that the enemy had been cleared from the area. Foreign Legionnaires were credited with a great share of the fighting.

But a later French communique said the enemy counter-attacked violently during the day in the Pont-Du-Faïs zone and made a slight advance "at the cost of heavy losses" at one point. The Germans were repulsed elsewhere in the area, and fifty German dead were counted in one sector held by French troops, the communique said.

Further south between Pichon and Kairouan where the French also were driving toward the Eastern Tunisian port of Sousse, the French said "we improved our position."

Widespread aerial activity was resumed over Tunisia with Allied bombers and fighters raining explosives on Axis rear line bases, including Sousse and Tunis, and strafing enemy communication lines. Axis aerial losses yesterday were listed as six or seven, including three bombers, against two Allied fighters.

A well-posted foreign source here said that Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring had been shifted from his air command in the Mediterranean to a post on the Russian front because of Marshal Rommel's complaints of Kesselring's inability to halt the RAP in Libya. Kesselring is said to have been succeeded by Field Marshal Erwin Von Witzleben.

Ground Fighting Is Severe

While the Allies announced the abandonment of the hilltop northeast of Medjez-El-Bab, now after heavy fighting Christmas eve and Christmas day, the Germans announced its recapture.

Most of the ground fighting however was in Central and Southern Tunisia, but the Allied communique said "our forces destroyed two enemy tanks with artillery fire," and light enemy units attacked one of our positions north of Jedjez-El-Bab without success."

In the aerial war a formation of P-38 Lockheed Lightning fighters made their deepest penetration yet of enemy territory in the raid on (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

750 MERCHANT VESSELS, A NEW RECORD, TURNED OUT IN 1942

American Shipbuilding Industry Meeting Axis Challenge

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (AP)—The American shipbuilding industry turned out in 1942 a record number of 750 merchant vessels, totaling 8,600,000 deadweight tons, to meet President Roosevelt's "blue-print for victory" goal, H. Gerrish Smith, president of the National Council of Shipbuilders, said today.

Axis submarines have sunk 575 Allied and neutral cargo ships in the Western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor in the Associated Press tabulation of announced sinkings.

In a year-end statement, Smith asserted that "if we are given the

Continue Efforts To Trap Million-Man Nazi Army Stalled in the Caucasus

One of the Great Goals of Russian Winter Strategy Is Achieved in Capture of Town Ninety Miles Southwest of Stalingrad; Many Enemy Supply Routes Are Cut

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Wednesday, Dec. 30 (AP)—Russian troops have captured Kotelnikovski, ninety miles southwest of Stalingrad, in the onrushing effort to reach Rostov on the Sea of Azov and trap a million-man German army stalled in the Caucasus and before Stalingrad.

A special Soviet communique issued early today announced tersely:

"Our troops occupied the town and railway station of Kotelnikovski. Large trophies were captured, among which were seventeen planes and convoy of tanks."

The regular midnight communique also announced the capture of Torgovaya, fifty-seven miles southeast of Kotelnikovski, and about forty miles above Elista, provincial capital in the Kalmyck Steppes of the Caucasus.

One Great Goal Reached

Thus one of the great goals of Russian winter strategy had been achieved on the basis of additional information here. The capture of Kotelnikovski was a further blow to the Nazi hope of rescuing twenty-two divisions which the Russians say are trapped between the Don and Volga rivers north of Kotelnikovski. Other Red army units have been hammering these 300,000 Nazis from all sides for weeks, steadily driving wedges into their hedgehog positions and virtually severing all their supply routes save by air transport.

Far to the northwest Soviet troops that crossed the Middle Don and veered Southward toward Rostov were believed to be nearing a junction with those in the Kotelnikovski sector. It is said such a union would throw a second Red army ring around the twenty-two Nazi divisions. And if these two Soviet columns converge at Rostov an even greater German army would be cut off in the Caucasus, the Russians said.

The Middle Don offensive already has surrounded Millerovo on the Moscow-Rostov line and has by-passed that town in the drive toward Rostov. The Russian troops churning through snow and operating under sub-zero temperatures were believed to be within 100 miles (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

End to Hawaii's Total Military Government Seen

Formula Worked Out for Restoring Measure of Civil Control

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—An end to Hawaii's year of total military government was predicted today following conferences among the president, Gov. Ingram M. Stainback of Hawaii and officials of the Army, Navy, Justice and Interior departments.

President Roosevelt said the question of reestablishing a portion of civilian authority is shaping up all right. He told reporters he thought there would be a certain amount of relinquishment of military control and that the matter probably would work out all right without much trouble.

Earlier Secretary of the Navy Knox said a "completely satisfactory formula" had been worked out for restoring a measure of civil control. Final arrangements, he said, will be announced shortly.

No Date Indicated

Knox told reporters two problems confronted officials trying to solve the Hawaiian governmental situation—the preservation of military security around the "Gibraltar of the Pacific" and Hawaiians' desire to have restored as large a degree as possible of civil government.

No date was indicated for the shift to at least partial control by civilian authorities, but authoritative sources, which cannot be identified, said that if the government departments involved did not work out a satisfactory program quickly the president would attend to the matter personally.

Allies May Soon Attempt To End Tunisia Deadlock

Drive May Come before Rommel Can Join Re-inforcements

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

Although the gains made by the Red army in Russia dominate the war news, there are increasing signs that the reunited Anglo-American and Fighting French Allies in Tunisia will soon attempt to break the stalemate there.

No such intimation can be read in French or Anglo-American bulletins from the scene. They have depicted for many days only give-and-take positional struggles for tactical advantages or clashes of scouting patrols.

Nevertheless, there can be small doubt that General Eisenhower's command is making ready behind that screen to crash forward in force to crack the Axis hold on the Tunisian foreland. This will be done if possible before Rommel's army fleeing from Tripolitania can effectively join forces with air and sea-borne Nazi comrades rushed to garrison the Bizerte and Tunis triangle and its short-cut corridor down the Tunisian East coast.

Doubt that Rommel aims to effect that junction in Tunisia is rapidly diminishing. Fighting French sources report his advance elements already filtering into Tunisia across the Southeastern border.

Giraud Can Count on Unity

If that is so, the remnants of the African Corps are strung out for nearly 300 miles along the coast of Tripolitania from the Tunisian border to the point 180 miles west of Tripoli where its rear guard is in contact with British Imperial troops. The head of the steel snake inching its way into Tunisia is still distant more than 200 miles from the indicated South flank of the Allied line hemming in the Bizerte-Tunis triangle.

West of Sousse, Tunisian port on the Gulf of Hammamet which appears to be the main objective of the French commanded by General Giraud, Allied advance lines are less than forty miles from reaching the sea and interposing between Rommel and the Tunisian foreland. The unanimity with which General Giraud's elevation to succeed Admiral Darlan as leader in North Africa was hailed even by General DeGaulle in London as a heartening omen.

It seems to mean that Giraud can count fully upon the unity of his fighting forces at a moment when French valor and French arms, supplemented from American and British stocks and backed by American air power, could deal a death blow to Nazi hopes of concentrating all Axis forces in Africa to hold the Tunisian foreland and still bar the Mediterranean waistline to Allied use.

Rommel Recognizes Danger

That France in Africa should test its fighting mettle anew in so important a phase of the battle of Tunisia, could go farther to promote French fighting unity under Giraud than a French military victory paving the way for complete annihilation of the foe in Africa.

That French fight to cut off Rommel's retreat while the British close in upon him from the rear could be the birth pangs of a new and free France.

Rommel appears to recognize his danger. There is growing evidence that he is using every means at his disposal to by-pass the Sousse-Kairouan line by sea with some of his munitions and heavy equipment, if not men.

Allied planes are roving Eastern Tunisian coastal centers to balk him by land or sea and aid the French effort to thrust across his line of northward retreat. And now come London reports of British submarines downing Axis supply craft in the gulf of Hammamet itself.

white bread—but Wickard explained that, "as a part of our wartime food program, the maintenance and strengthening of nutrition standards are imperative in the interest of national health and well being."

The secretary of agriculture issued the order in his new capacity as food administrator. He said the order was framed after consultation with the baking industry, which supplied numerous suggestions.

The ban on slicing bread will not apply during the next sixty days, however, on loaves weighing two pounds or more each. Provision also is expected for the sale of sliced bread to restaurants, hotels, war plants and other large institutions, although Wickard said he hoped that many of these could also make arrangements for slicing their own bread.

British Review

However, the report added, it soon became apparent that the task was too great for the vanguard and that "means more methodical, which had been envisaged," would have to be employed.

The advance units were withdrawn early in December from their exposed positions and the main army proceeded to build up itself and its communications.

Italy, the review said, now is anxiously watching the "threatening build-up of a British army only a few miles from the Sicilian channel."

Touhy Gang

Flood lights were set in place. A loud speaker system was installed. Families were moved to the third floor so they could be evacuated through a sky light if the structure was filled with tear gas. The street was cleared.

At the zero hour the spot lights lit the building. A voice boomed through the amplifier in the stillness of the night:

"Come out through the front door. Come out backwards and with your hands up. Banghart, you come out first."

The sound echoed eerily. It roused residents of a square block.

For ten minutes the agents fingered the triggers of their weapons. The door of the Touhy apartment opened. Banghart, hands overhead, backed out cautiously. Strong arms collared him, hauled him into the agents' apartment, clapped manacles on his wrists.

Then came Touhy, the leader. He was clad in brilliant red pajamas. His dark, curly hair had been turned blond by peroxide.

Darlik emerged meekly. All surrendered without a struggle and seemed relieved that they were caught unscathed.

The trio did not know of the fate that befell two of their fellow fugitives because of the utter secrecy with which the government concealed their movements.

Into a similar trap at 11:15 o'clock last night walked Eugene Lanham, better known by the alias, James O'Connor, and St. Clair McInerney. They entered the Norwood apartments at 1256 Leland avenue, a few blocks from the Touhy hideout. The federal men ordered them to surrender. They responded with gunfire—were killed.

Hoover reported that Mathew Nelson (correct name Martinek Nelson, alias Harold Seeger) had been taken into custody Dec. 16 in Minneapolis. He added that William Stewart had been apprehended Dec. 19 in Chicago.

Hoover related that the gang's hideouts yielded five revolvers, two sawed-off shotguns, and one 30-30 rifle; and that $13,533 had been recovered.

Captain Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's police announced later that the numbers on $10 bills found in Touhy's possession bore the same sequence as those snatched in the spectacular $20,000 holdup of an armored truck Dec. 18 at the gates of a war plant in the West suburban area.

The first steps in disposition of the gangsters were left to United States Attorney J. Albert Woll. The federal men seized the fugitives. Hoover pointed out with a smile, on a charge of failure to attend to their draft boards of a change of address when they went over the walls of the prison.

All, of course, can be returned to the Stateville penitentiary, where they were serving long terms. Touhy and Banghart were sentenced to ninety-nine years each for the 1933 kidnaping of John "Jake" the Barber Factor.

The others, with one exception, were imprisoned for robbery or as habitual criminals. The exception is Darlik, who was sent up for 199 years for murdering a Chicago policeman.

Hoover told reporters the seven desperadoes were trapped after weeks of careful planning and timing. He added they had been in Chicago since they fled from prison and provided this partial log of their movements:

They lived in a north side flat until Dec. 5. They moved then because Nelson went out on a drinking spree. As punishment, Nelson and Stewart were beaten with pistol butts by their confederates. Nelson went to Minneapolis and Stewart shifted to a Chicago hotel. Both were taken into custody later.

The FBI chief stated that the "best talent" in his service took part in the roundup, and lauded the co-operation of the Chicago Police Department.

Hoover recalled that some of the gangsters had been paroled in best phases of their criminal careers.

"I think it stinks," he asserted. He spoke approval of paroles "decently administered" but condemned the practice of "turning rats like these loose on the streets to indulge in gunplay against innocent citizens."

Hoover reported the Chicago raids brought to twenty-four the number of persons killed by the FBI in the last ten years. In that time, he added, 55,000 persons had been captured and only thirteen agents had been lost in gun fights.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29 (AP)—Just as whispering, tip-toeing federal agents were about to spring their trap on Roger Touhy and his aides early today a citizen staggered up to the sidewalk in front of the surrounding building.

Officers tried to restrain him but the interloper, full of whisky and wrath, declared: "I'll get your jobs if you don't let me go."

One policeman clapped a large hand over the citizen's mouth. Another picked him up bodily. He was hauled away to a police station.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29 (AP)—As Roger Touhy was being led from the building where he was captured today, he encountered Sergeant William Beehan of the Chicago police.

"Looks like the jig is up, Touhy," the officer remarked.

"Gotta take things as they come," Touhy responded.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 29 (AP)—Harry Bobo, 207, of Pittsburgh, shipped out a 10-round decision over Jack "Buddy" Walker, 191, of Columbus tonight to win Columbus Boxing Commission recognition as the "duration" heavyweight champion of the world.

Rivers Reach Flood Level at Pittsburgh

Water Seeps into Allegheny Yards of Pennsylvania Railroad

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 29 (AP)—Streams of the Upper Ohio river watershed rapidly neared or passed flood stage tonight. The upsurging waters reached the twenty-five-foot flood level at the confluence of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers here shortly before midnight.

The rise was from three to six inches an hour.

United States Weather Forecaster W. S. Brotzman, who thrice during the night revised upward his estimates of the probable crest, said a twenty-nine-foot level was likely by tomorrow afternoon.

The Pennsylvania railroad began shuttling cars and engines from its Allegheny yards as the water seeped into them, six inches deep in some spots. Some street cars had to be rerouted.

A twenty-nine-foot level would cause no serious damage in the district, but many lowlying streets would be flooded, as well as basements of some buildings.

Johnstown reported the Stony creek-Conemaugh river level at nine and one-half feet, up about five feet from normal and rising at a rate of 1.32 feet every two hours. The new flood level there is sixteen feet.

The Johnstown Observer said no crest was in sight yet, but that the government's new streamlined flood control system was rushing the waters past the flood city at a high rate of speed.

Down the Ohio river at Wheeling, a twenty-nine foot stage, seven below flood level, was reached before midnight, with the water coming up at the rate of four-tenths of a foot an hour.

capacity of our industries, as shown during the war, they will demand the opportunity to earn by honest labor a decent amount of that enormous potential product. And they will demand their share of the potential product be made actual.

Will Demand Jobs

"They will not be lulled to sleep by commonplace about the limitations and difficulties of distribution nor by promises of 'prosperity just around the corner.' They will demand jobs here and now. I do not believe that an economy nominated by the philosophy of 'free enterprise' will be able to meet that demand."

"The second positive statement that I can make with some confidence is this: Unless the middle classes, that is, the comfortable farmers, the members of the professions, the small business men, the holders of executive and directive positions in the great corporations and, indeed, the majority of the 'white collar' classes—cease to get their opinions from the daily papers and strive to acquire a greater amount of realistic economic intelligence, they (the middle classes) may exercise sufficient voting power to place the champions of 'free enterprise' in control of economic reconstruction after the war. From such a calamity may the Good Lord deliver us!"

Labor Losses Indicated

Warning in his prepared address that labor "may lose all the advantages that it has obtained since June, 1933, x x x if it can be brought about by the dominant economic groups and their associates and satellites," Msgr. Ryan, a resident of Washington, D. C., continued:

"That such is their deliberate desire and design is clearly indicated by certain significant events: The declarations of the National Association of Manufacturers; the attitudes and utterances of the majority of the metropolitan newspapers; the pronouncements and performances of the most powerful of the farm organizations, and the reactionary attitude of the majority of the recently elected Congress. These persons and institutions are the authentic Bourbons of our time. They have learned nothing and forgotten nothing."

James A. Young

1879, Mr. Young was a Marylander sixty-one of the sixty-three years of his life. He was the eldest son of the late John W. and Mary Andrews Young and when he was still a small boy moved with them to Moscow Mills in this county where he attended public schools as well as in Barton and Cumberland.

As a youth Mr. Young learned the printing trade in the old printing shop of the Cumberland Evening Times and after he completed his apprenticeship was foreman for several years for Jacob Gottlieb who conducted a job printing business here.

Later, leaving the printing business, Mr. Young became vice-president of the Maryland Shoe Company here and later became a salesman for the Johnson Milling Company, remaining with this firm for seven years. He returned to the printing business, however, and established a printing shop on South Liberty street where he built up a valuable trade before being elected as clerk to the court of appeals in 1923.

Prominent Fraternally

Mr. Young was prominent in fraternal circles here years ago and held membership in Potomac Lodge, No. 100, A. F. and A. Masons; Chosen Friends Lodge, No. 34, Independent Order of Odd Fellows; Cumberland Encampment, No. 23, I. O. O. F.; Queen City Council, No. 49, Junior Order of United American Mechanics.

He was a past exalted ruler of Annapolis Lodge, No. 622, B. P. O. Elks, and a past state councilor of the Jr. O. U. A. M. He was a past patron of Annapolis Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, and was a member of Calvary Methodist church, Annapolis.

Mr. Young and his widow, the former Miss Daisy Wilson White, of Cumberland, were married in 1900. Their son, James Floyd Young, was associated with his father at the court of appeals and now is a deputy clerk under Ogle.

Surviving besides his widow and son are a sister, Mrs. Bertha A. Lightner, Baltimore, and a brother, the Rev. Joseph W. Young, Cumberland.

made contact with the enemy there we asserted ourselves. The fact that we have regained control of the Kubo valley indicates that we are not sitting down."

It was believed here that an Allied Eastward thrust from Akyab was highly unlikely because of a 5,000-foot range of mountains that separates the area from Burma proper. The real test for Burma was not expected to develop until Wavell moves Eastward and Southward toward Mandalay, where the enemy is deeply imbedded.

of Rostov on that town's Northern approaches.

The regular midnight communiqué that followed the special bulletin said the Russians had killed a total of 3,560 Nazis and had captured 470 yesterday during the offensives on the Middle Don and Stalingrad fronts. The Soviets already had announced the killing of 19,000 Germans southwest of Stalingrad between Dec. 12 and Dec. 27, and a toll of upwards of 120,000 Nazis had been claimed in the Middle Don push.

For the second day the Russians said the Germans were throwing fresh reserves against their troops in the Middle Don, but said these counterattacking Nazis had been repulsed and "our troops continued their offensives."

31 Planes Shot Down

In the Stalingrad area where the Germans are reported trapped, the Russians said they shot down another thirty-one Nazi transport planes on Monday alone, and inside the besieged city the Russians gained from 300 to 400 yards, occupying more wrecked buildings in the factory area and killing 300 Germans.

Heavy street fighting was the rule as the Russians drove on in the Kotelnikowski area where Red army units also are striking vividly of the captured city to shatter German strongpoints. More than 2,200 Germans were killed in two engagements yesterday, the Russians said, and great quantities of abandoned German equipment were taken including 415 trucks, 189 machinings, forty mortars and horses and cattle.

The active Southern Russian front now extends some 300 miles from the edge of the Ukraine, just below the town of Rososch, to a point near Eliska, provincial capital in the Kalmyk Steppes of the Caucasus.

In addition, the midnight communiqué told of continuing Russian attacks southeast of Nalchik, below the Kalmyk Steppes, where the Red army however appeared mainly to be consolidating their positions.

On the Central Front the Russians still said they were gaining, too, although German counterattacks there have been sustained for some time. Two hundred Germans were killed near Velikie Luki, and two Nazi infantry companies were wiped out west of Rzhev. Three hundred other enemy dead were left on the snowy battlefield in an adjoining sector.

The army organ Red Star published photographs from the Middle Don which illustrated the tremendous stores of military booty falling into Russian hands. One showed a Nazi military train loaded with five tanks standing beside a storehouse. Along the tracks were piles of munitions and other goods. Another showed a fleet of abandoned German trucks; a third captured Nazi big guns and anti-aircraft artillery.

Of the other major fighting fronts—west of Moscow and in the Caucasus—the mid-day Soviet communiqué told of vigorous but less decisive fighting.

In the area of Rzhev to the northwest of Moscow a strongly fortified German position was said to have fallen to Russian attacks.

Southeast of Nalchik in the Caucasus it was announced that Soviet troops had "entrenched themselves in captured positions." German counterattacks were reported on that front, but it was said that all were repulsed and the enemy thrown back to his original positions.

James A. Young

1879, Mr. Young was a Marylander sixty-one of the sixty-three years of his life. He was the eldest son of the late John W. and Mary Andrews Young and when he was still a small boy moved with them to Moscow Mills in this county where he attended public schools as well as in Barton and Cumberland.

As a youth Mr. Young learned the printing trade in the old printing shop of the Cumberland Evening Times and after he completed his apprenticeship was foreman for several years for Jacob Gottlieb who conducted a job printing business here.

Later, leaving the printing business, Mr. Young became vice-president of the Maryland Shoe Company here and later became a salesman for the Johnson Milling Company, remaining with this firm for seven years. He returned to the printing business, however, and established a printing shop on South Liberty street where he built up a valuable trade before being elected as clerk to the court of appeals in 1923.

Prominent Fraternally

Mr. Young was prominent in fraternal circles here years ago and held membership in Potomac Lodge, No. 100, A. F. and A. Masons; Chosen Friends Lodge, No. 34, Independent Order of Odd Fellows; Cumberland Encampment, No. 23, I. O. O. F.; Queen City Council, No. 49, Junior Order of United American Mechanics.

He was a past exalted ruler of Annapolis Lodge, No. 622, B. P. O. Elks, and a past state councilor of the Jr. O. U. A. M. He was a past patron of Annapolis Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, and was a member of Calvary Methodist church, Annapolis.

Mr. Young and his widow, the former Miss Daisy Wilson White, of Cumberland, were married in 1900. Their son, James Floyd Young, was associated with his father at the court of appeals and now is a deputy clerk under Ogle.

Surviving besides his widow and son are a sister, Mrs. Bertha A. Lightner, Baltimore, and a brother, the Rev. Joseph W. Young, Cumberland.

Two Local Men Receive Commissions At Camp Lee, Va.

Two Cumberland men, one from Frostburg, and one from Mt. Lake Park, were among the 1,100 newly-commissioned second lieutenants who graduated from the United States Army Quartermaster School recently at Camp Lee, Va.

John P. Niland and William D. Webb, this city; Richard G. Holben, Frostburg; and Roland C. Ready, Mt. Lake Park, received their insignia at the ceremonies at which Col. James H. Johnson spoke.

Functions of Plane Spotters Is Shown In Radio Programs

Howard P. Loughrie, chief observer of the Allegany county plane spotting service, said last night that persons interested in the work and function of the plane spotting system can learn much by listening in at 5:15 p. m., each Thursday over radio station WTBO. The programs are enacted by professional radio talent and are not only instructive but entertaining, Loughrie added. The First Fighter Command is sponsoring these programs.

At Hyndman, the B. & O. railroad dispatcher reported a rise in Will's creek of one foot between 6 and 9:30 p. m. No official gauge is located at Hyndman now due to the flood of last October carrying away the one that formerly was stationed there. The creek was still rising and rain continued at midnight.

Smith said that 600 of the 750 ships were of the Liberty type, the emergency freighters of approximately 10,500 deadweight tons, which are mostly all-weather and constructed in yards designed for that purpose.

The flow of materials and equipment, he said, had been "unusually dependable" during the past year, but he added that "shipyard facilities and a growing efficiency, however, have so expanded that we can now produce ships faster than certain types of material can be supplied for commercial and naval vessels."

Big Ships Built Inland

"Naval vessels built in privately-owned yards have been delivered in six months to a year ahead of schedule," Smith said and declared that "repair work on our own commercial and naval vessels as well as those of the United Nations have taxed our capacity, but we have met the challenge. Two companies alone repaired over 12,000 of all types in a recent year."

"Our river and Great Lakes yards are turning out the largest ships they have ever built, the size being limited only by ability to float the craft from inland waters to the sea," he said. "Ore ships, rivaling the length of our greatest battleships, are now being constructed in Great Lakes shipyards for use in lake service. Wood and concrete ships and barges are also being made in considerable number."

work-week of the labor force to forty-eight hours, and getting the equivalent of an unstated additional number by increasing the efficiency of industry beyond the ten per cent already anticipated in the estimates by such methods as better scheduling of flow of materials.

Drawing the remaining number from the ranks of those over or under the ages of persons in the present labor force.

Meanwhile, McNutt told reporters he regarded compulsory job control legislation as unnecessary at this time and said he had not yet used even the indirect penalties available to him to force compliance with his requests upon employers and employees.

He said neither war industry nor farm production had been curtailed so far by a shortage of manpower and said he was "happy" over results obtained through voluntary job stabilization agreements put into effect in several areas.

the Axis truck convoy, "carrying troops, gasoline and supplies near the border of Tunisia and Tripolitania."

"About twenty trucks were destroyed," the communiqué said, "most of them being left on fire." This news appeared to bear out earlier reports that the Axis forces in Libya were moving westward into Tunisia to make a final stand there in the battle of Africa. The convoy was pounced upon between Tripoli and Medenine, fifty miles southeast of the port of Gabes, the latter being the apparent goal of the United States ground troops that Berlin said had entered Gafsa.

as rapidly as could a war council. He added that it would be a good idea to buy the governor a "crown" if the bill passed the Legislature.

W. Frank Roberts, chairman of the Maryland Council of Defense, admitted that the committee failed to consider the point about the constitutional requirement regarding the convening of the Legislature. Roberts then proposed that some provision be made to allow the lawmakers to meet in the interim, but the constitutionality of such a provision was quickly questioned.

Dentist Can Help Patient Regain Comfort Following Loss of Teeth

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Everybody is hereby warned that when they come to the period of life when they begin to lose teeth, they should fight against it as hard as possible. Only those who have lost their teeth know how valuable and comfortable they were compared to any substitutes for them. Some patients and some dentists are willing to sacrifice teeth very lightly but most dentists are very conservative and do everything they can to save as many teeth as possible.

Preliminary Study

After the event has occurred, however, and you have what is known as an edentulous mouth, there are many methods to be used to help bring back a reasonable amount of comfort. In the first place, the dentist should study the mentality and the needs of the patient.

There should be a long talk and a thorough understanding of just how much the patient expects and just what he wants. Then the patient should understand that a complete diagnostic study, in order to make him as comfortable as possible, is a somewhat elaborate procedure. If the patient does not consent to a complete diagnostic study, the ultimate result is likely to be very unsatisfactory.

Those who have had experience say that a preliminary study before denture construction is begun reduces dissension and dissatisfaction to a minimum. It also prevents make-overs and the necessity to recast dentures a second, third or even a fourth time.

The diagnosis and study consists in the first place of x-rays of the jaws; second, impressions of the jaws on plastic materials and making a permanent plaster or stone cast; third, transillumination of ridges and sinuses; fourth, inspection of throat, tongue, lips and cheeks; fifth, construction of diagnostic bite plates and the taking of the diagnostic bite. There are a few other procedures which the dentist will want to do which are somewhat too technical to discuss here.

The temporary diagnostic bite plates are constructed of plastic base plate wax and waxes that differ in color. Light pink wax forms that portion of the bite above the ridge plane while a tooth-tinted wax forms the bite line.

Mental Makeup of Patient

Much of the success of a permanent denture depends upon the mental makeup of the patient. One dentist classifies his patients on the basis of whether they are philosophical, exacting, hysterical or indifferent. A patient either above or below the average emotional level makes a poor denture patient.

Often the general health of the patient, his circulatory system, whether or not he is anemic and the condition of the nervous system will ruin the success of the best-planned work of this kind.

Cooperation of Patient

After the diagnosis is made, the dentist should talk over all the whys and wherefores with the patient, who is entitled to know the results of the study and the exact conditions in order that he may cooperate and understand just what he is supposed to do.

Very important is a periodic check-up as to whether or not the denture is comfortable. These check-ups give the dentist an opportunity of observing his successes and are educational to him. In these days of change new materials are being used by dentists and a periodic check-up enables the patient to have the advantage of any improvements that have been made in this field. No dentist can really be held responsible for the success or failure of dentistry unless he is given the opportunity to make frequent check-ups with the patient to see how he is reacting to the new conditions.

Questions and Answers

D. F.—If a person is afflicted with tuberculosis and has never had a cough or temperature, what causes a hemorrhage?

Answer: Hemorrhage is often the first sign of tuberculosis; the disease is notoriously silent in its progress and many people go for a long time without a cough or a temperature. The cause of hemorrhage in these cases is just the same as the cause of hemorrhage in any case: an invasion of the walls of the blood vessels by the tuberculosis process.

State War Council Is Not Wanted

MARYLANDERS do not appear to be taking kindly to the attempt by Governor O'Connor to foist a "state war council" on them. Stern opposition has been registered on all sides, particularly in the press. The Baltimore Sunpapers are unconvinced that the thing is a necessity. The News has been unable to accept the reasons thus far advanced for the plan. A typical expression of sentiment in smaller communities is given by the News-Tribune, of Towson.

"This attempt to usurp prerogatives of our state legislature," says the Towson paper, "is in line with the Democratic trend toward a totalitarian form of government, and has no place in a free America. The only inference to be gained by a study of the proposal is that O'Connor is saying, in substance, that our duly elected legislators do not have enough brains to perform their legislative functions, hence the necessity of a 'state war council'."

"The proposed seven-man council would give the governor the right to confirm or reject any action of the war council, which, of course, would mean setting him up as a 'dictator' pure and simple."

"In view of the narrow escape from defeat suffered by the governor in the last election, he should know Marylanders are not wildly enthusiastic about his abilities, and for that reason, are content to abide by the decisions of our duly constituted legislators."

"Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and member of the Defense council, objected to the proposed war council in no uncertain terms. Said Mrs. Whitehurst: 'Education to the public [to the need for the council] would be necessary before it would gain any support.'"

"No, Governor O'Connor, the Free State of Maryland intends remaining free. We do not need, or want, any 'one-man' government, nor do we need a 'state war council'."

"We need wise and just legislation, and we need active war co-operation, and not petty politics."

"We are fighting the Axis powers to defeat just such dictatorship. Our fathers and sons are fighting and dying on far-flung battlefields to preserve democracy."

"We urge all Marylanders who have the best interests of their state at heart to send letters of protest to our legislators, condemning this attempt to foist dictatorship on the Free State of Maryland."

In view of the strong protests that have thus far been filed against the council plan, it would be well, as the News has suggested, to place it in limbo for the time being.

Excellent Work Done by Ingram

ALAN F. EGLESTON, chairman of the Allegany County division of the Maryland Council of Defense, bespoke the opinion of Alleganians generally in the tribute he paid to the work done by Vincent P. Ingram as county defense director, which tribute was given in the letter accepting Ingram's resignation made necessary by ill health.

Ingram did, indeed, do a splendid job in building up from scratch the present strong and dependable system of civilian defense throughout the county. He displayed remarkable evidence of leadership all along and it was this and the untiring energy he put behind it that accounted largely for the success of the organization. Forceful, determined, but patient and persistent, Ingram gave much of his time and effort to the job, which, by reason of its voluntary nature, entailed more than ordinary difficulties.

It is the hope of the community that Ingram will be speedily restored to health and, as Eggleston stated, be able not only to return soon to his business activities but also to engage again in this civilian defense program, which will always be in need of a man of the ability he demonstrated in it.

Two War Encirclements Are Now Patterned

NOW THAT the United Nations definitely have taken the initiative in three sectors—Russia, North Africa and the South Pacific—their next step obviously is to crowd in on the enemy from all points of the compass.

With the fall of Tunis and the liquidation of the Axis forces in Africa, the expected invasion of Europe from the south will follow, and although the day the stroke will be delivered cannot previously be divulged, there is every reason to believe that the strategy will call for a gigantic many-pronged effort.

Everything now indicates that launching of an Allied thrust from Africa is to be timed to coincide with Nazi disaster in Russia, and that simultaneous thrusts will be aimed at Norway and across the Channel into France. With Russia visiting vengeance upon the Nazis, Hitler, who whimpered before the war that Germany was encircled, will discover that Germany is indeed the center of a remorselessly constricting ring.

This will be the end of Hitler's mad adventure. He has fought his war by a succession of frontal attacks. He will be crushed by a concerted rebound from all of them.

In the Orient, with Japan ousted from the Solomons, New Guinea and Timor, the northward advance island by island will begin. And as this island campaign proceeds, the armies of the Allies with air and sea support, will undertake another campaign against the China coast, with Japan within bombing distance and American forces closing in for the kill from the Aleutians or from whatever bases are available.

Henceforth, until the end of the war, every day will record new disaster visited upon the twin enemies of civilization, the German and the Jap, until such parts of the populations of these two nations as are left alive are willing to begin the long grind of paying for some of the damage and misery wrought by their barbarity.

Government Bureaus Should Be Curbed

IF the economic stabilization director can put a limit of $25,000 a year on salaries, he can set the ceiling at any level. If he has the authority to put a limit of $25,000 on incomes, he has authority over all salaries and wages.

Under the general emergency powers granted to the president, Mr. Roosevelt established the War Labor Board. It is now assuming to say that a wage-earner may be compelled against his wishes to join a labor union, and even that he may be compelled to join a particular union, and that he may be forced to pay dues to a union by having the amount deducted from his pay. If it has that power, it has practically totalitarian power over a vital element in the country's economy.

These and other questions have revived interest in the bill to take the last word in such matters from the bureaus and provide for court reviews of bureau orders. The bureaus have forced this question on the country by taking advantage of the war emergency to extend their campaign against free enterprise and individual liberty.

They are openly trying to thwart the will of the people as expressed in the recent election.

The new Congress may abolish many of the 130 bureaus that have been set up in the ten years since the New Deal took over. But it should also pass a bill to check the bureaus—some such bill as the Walter-Logan bill, which the president vetoed two years ago.

If these bureaus are not legally restrained before the peace comes, they may rob the country of much of the benefit of military victory.

Harry Woodring, Roosevelt's former secretary of war, says the reason he has proposed a third party is that the two old ones are worn out. Only one of them is, Harry.

In appointing a bunch of nobodies to run his war machine, Hitler may be puzzling the Russians, but the guy who's upset the most is the German soldier.

It's about time Hitler came out with a revised edition of Mein Kampf. Some of his chapters on the Russians are badly in need of re-editing.

All roads once led to Rome, but Allied bombers seem to be unable to locate the place.

Wives and Insurance

By MARSHALL MASLIN

An insurance agent had me right on the point of saying yes. He'd talked to me for an hour. He had pushed me into a corner and I'd admitted I should have more insurance, that my health was good and I believed in insurance, and it was barely possible that I could afford a little more.

At last I agreed and everything was nearly settled. Everything but signing my name and arranging for an appointment with the doctor. He got out his little fountain pen and then I said: "I'll have to talk this over with my wife."

That started the argument all over again. He smiled patiently and said that after all I was doing this for HER, wasn't I? She was the one to benefit by it. Delicately he suggested that a man should decide these matters for himself and tell his wife about them later. . . . And somehow I got the idea while my friend the insurance man was talking that he had said all these things many times before.

So I broke in on his argument and asked: "Don't wives WANT their husbands to have insurance?"

My suspicion was justified. . . . According to the insurance men, wives don't—not all of them, at any rate. He said that three times out of four when a man says he wants to talk over an insurance policy with his wife—and does—she talks him out of it. He came back and says it's all off.

The insurance man doesn't know just how it happens. . . . Perhaps the man hides behind his wife's skirts (now that they are long enough again) but he's not quite sure that's the case. He suspects that his prospects' wives think there's something selfish about insurance or that the family can use the premium money in some better way, or that it's bad luck to contemplate death by buying insurance. . . . Whatever the reason, this insurance man whom I know SHIVERS when a man says: "I'll talk it over with my wife."

Is it true—or isn't it?—that wives aren't eager to have their husbands buy insurance? Husbands believe in insurance. Don't wives? And if they don't, why not?

Roosevelt's Swipe At O'Donnell Is Viewed as Boquet

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—For a would-be kick in the pants to land as a fine compliment may be paradoxical. Nevertheless, President Roosevelt's recent swipe in the direction of the sea of John O'Donnell's journalistic trousers generally is regarded by John's professional colleagues in the Washington newspaper corps as having been highly flattering.

Charles P. Stewart

It's the consensus of opinion at the National Press Club that it ought to win the lad a substantial pay boost.

Known by All Hands

The story has been copiously broadcast to capital scribes, but I doubt that the miscellaneous public senses the full beauty of it. A reporter or editor is the chap to analyze it fully understandingly.

It's necessary to repeat a bit to rub in the idea thoroughly.

John O'Donnell is chief Washington correspondent of a national news service.

For a long time he's regularly attended what are known as White House press conferences. He's been prominent in the bunch, too. From the president on down, all hands know him.

One of his associates for years has been another of the same gang, George Durno.

George, being eligible now, has been mustered into the military service and at present is an army captain in the Australian area.

What Started It

John received a letter from him as a friend of a generation's standing. He also got a kind of a twin letter from Jack Turkott, another American newspaperman in the same outfit. They were josh letters. No censor interfered with 'em. There was no reason for any censor to do so.

They struck John O'Donnell as good copy and he played extracts from 'em accordingly.

Somewhat, upon their appearance in print, the frivolity of them angered F.D.R.

As his notion of a reward, he sent a German Iron Cross to Brer O'Donnell. He didn't mean it as a reward, either. The Iron Cross for years has been recognized as the highest recognition of German valor on the battlefield.

Intention Plain

That cross unmistakably was intended as an expression of the White House judgment that John was plugging for the Germans.

How F. D. R. got the gawgaw isn't explained, but it's immaterial, considering how long and intimately he's been associated with internationalism. He doubtless has oodles of such tags available.

John accepted his gift very graciously, merely saying that he'd no notion that his yarn would be misinterpreted.

The point is that so jovial a little spiel's importance should be so overtly dealt with by as big a functionary as the United States president. If that isn't a compliment, I'm no judge of them.

One-Way Humor

What the executive mansion chronically lacks, currently is a sense of humor. It plays horse persistently with the newspaper crew, but it wants no reciprocation.

Mrs. Roosevelt is as sensitive as the president.

Her girl callers have to be as careful as the boss's.

It runs all through bureaucratic politics.

A censorship isn't so bad that's choked off in advance, but this stuff oozes out and then is called to time after it's appeared in print.

Then it's too late to do anything about it.

It'll be worse, too. The censorship will be getting tighter.

There were several suspended mail delivery days. You didn't know what you were delivering or what was due to you that you weren't receiving.

You can't tell just how much of it's censorial and how much it's due to impaired postal service bureaucracy gone cuckoo. It's ceased to mean anything.

Hoover Plan Constructive

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligence

In the judgment of this newspaper, Mr. Hoover has made the most constructive suggestion yet contributed to the general discussion of peace plans. In essence his plan is to substitute a conditional peace for an armistice when the fighting ends; to incorporate in this such essentials as disarmament of the enemy, the designation of provisional boundaries, lifting of the economic blockade, arrangements for the feeding of all peoples, and the restoration of all pre-war commercial treaties; then, to attack the broader problems of permanent peace in a leisurely manner, treating them individually by separate commissions rather than trying to work everything out at once in a general peace conference.

We think Mr. Hoover's plan is constructive for two reasons. First, because it deals with the machinery of peace-making rather than with the terms of post-war inter-

War Is Being Prolonged by a Serious Imbalance of Supplies, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—There's one word which describes aptly not only the status of the war effort of America but also that of the United Nations. That word is "imbalance."

Unless the condition is corrected, all previous estimates as to the length of World War II must be revised and likewise all previous estimates as to the number of men who will be killed or wounded.

We hope that Mr. Hoover's proposal will be made the basis of wide public discussion, here and abroad. It is true that it would delay, perhaps for a number of years, the working out of a complete peace plan. In the meantime, however, all of the essentials of immediate peaceful existence would be present. And what difference would a few years make if they brought us something all of the centuries of the past have not brought us—a workable plan of world organization?

Hash Is Patriotic

From the Christian Science Monitor

Salvage is not furnishing munitions of war only. The American nation is profiting in many ways.

Up in Vermont, for instance, 1943 motor license tabs, to be bolted to 1942 plates, are being fashioned from tin cans, salvaged from state institutions. Out in Wilmette, Ill., contributions of metal, rubber, rags and newspapers have enabled this Chicago suburb to pay all its costs of civilian defense. Citizens gladly contribute the materials since municipal expenses thus are reduced. City employees sort the materials, which thus bring a better price—and homes are reducing fire hazards. Are all government units alert to these salvage possibilities?

Individuals, too, can learn lessons of avoiding waste in these days when many materials and products are scarce. Even the old-fashioned soap saver may come into vogue at the kitchen sink. And when it comes to salvage, what household is not utilizing leftovers since meat rationing began? Certain members of the family may still look down their noses at hash—but they eat it.

The central trouble, of course, is that the president is a poor administrator and that he makes the same mistakes of zeal and enthusiasm in particular directions that his co-worker, Prime Minister Churchill, makes. Both men are temperamentally great and inspiring leaders but they have made some serious errors which in due time will be disclosed and though these will not mar the broad record of leadership, historians will ask why their fellow countrymen were so acquiescent and passive while such blunders were in process of being made.

At the moment, the most spectacular blunder lies in the handling of the aircraft and submarine problem. Having neglected air power for years, the administration now has swung to such an extreme as to effect adversely the flow of materials to build the escort ships and the cruisers, destroyers and capital ships required to convoy supplies safely and to break down the submarine menace, and the submarine situation is bad.

Vast Supplies Sunk

The sinkings near our own coast have let up somewhat but the losses on the other side of the ocean have mounted considerably. Much of the food, much of the oil, much of the gasoline needed both at home and overseas are at the bottom of the ocean. Not a single official estimate has been released by Britain and America since the war began to indicate the billions of dollars of materials and supplies lost through submarine activity.

"Victory through Air Power" has been a good slogan that has swept the country but it has come to mean victory through air power alone. Yet air power has had more than a year of huge production at the expense of other needed weapons and the enemy has been permitted to increase its undersea warfare. Air power, it might be supposed, could destroy submarine bases but the enemy has been given ample time to build concrete caverns to protect them.

U-Boats Not Licked

Likewise the battleship Tirpitz and the cruisers Gneisenau and Scharnhorst are accessible to air bombers of the United Nations but they still lie undestroyed in Norwegian harbors while a considerable number of our surface naval vessels are tied up maintaining a costly vigil. Air power has failed to lick the submarines and to destroy the small remnant of Germany's nuisance navy. This is largely a British problem and more questions are asked about it and go unanswered than on any other single phase of naval war.

Air power has had its priorities but what has happened to the enormous amount of aircraft produced this past year? Has it been permitted to dribble away a little here and a little there? Air power is fully recognized as an essential part of modern warfare and in its proper place can make land and sea operations many times more effective than they ever have been. But our navy in the Pacific needs more air power or else it needs a co-ordinated command so as to make better use of it in that area.

Japanese Method

The Japanese do not have a separate air command but the navy controls all airplanes used in offensive and defensive operations in and around islands and other land bases. Propaganda for a separate air corps has cost America plenty and the existence of a separate air force in Britain independent of naval or military control by the regular armed services has to date failed to achieve the objectives that should by now have been reached.

These views are held not just by laymen observers but by men who ought to know and who can be classed as experts, men who want more and not less air power but who also want a better distribution of weapons and supplies so we can shorten the war.

The United States Army has developed new gloves to protect hands of sentries on duty in mosquito-infested areas. The body of the glove is made of cotton canton flannel, olive gray in color, with knitted wristlets.

More than 61,000 steel workers entered the armed forces between Oct. 1, 1940, and June 30, 1942, according to a recent survey.

Passenger traffic on American railroads has increased more than fifty per cent in the past year.

Champion Cigar Smoker Attains Enormous Total

By E. V. DURLING

America's champion cigar smoker, Dr. Maurice J. Levi, of New York city, has smoked fourteen cigars a day for sixty-five years.

In all 331,110 cigars. Dr. Levi is now 85 years old. . . . Chicagoan says one of the silliest of habits affected by the female sex is that of throwing a fur coat or other overcoat over the shoulders with the sleeves hanging loosely. "It makes a woman look round-shouldered," said he, "and is usually indulged in by women who think it makes them look cute."

Sidelights

Barrister George Forikos, of Chicago, says there is a belief based on "good historical theory" that the Irish are direct descendants of the Greeks. . . . When campaigning for the office of president of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt said: "If elected I shall see to it that every man has a square deal, no less, no more." I like that "no less, no more" very much. There are quite a few people getting more than a square deal these days. . . . Are you familiar with the matter of "supplementary gasoline rations", which can be obtained in an emergency? I wasn't well versed on this angle until I read of a Californian getting permission to buy 132 gallons of gasoline to visit his sick father in Houston, Tex. Turned out the man's father was in perfect health and the application a fake. No doubt all A card holders in the country hope the judge throws the book at that fellow when he comes to trial.

Says He

"You claim to be a member of the Husbands' Protective Association, that grand organization which battles so bravely for happier lives for married men. If you are a member I am about to ask for your expulsion," writes a very angry Los Angeles husband. "My wife now demands she be paid a salary. I find she received the inspiration for this demand in your column. Is that the way you protect us poor, suffering husbands? If you think my red-haired beauty is kidding about getting a salary check for being a home manager you are mistaken. She really means it. During these times she should be paid salaries," she said this morning. "And so what?" I answered. "Is he the supreme court or something? But her mind's made up. And you are to blame. You should be ashamed of yourself after you had agreed to battle for the interests of the husbands."

Asking

Queries from Clients: Q. My husband says to ask you what horse won the Grand National steeplechase at Liverpool with a silver pipe in his throat. He says if you can't name the animal you owe him a cigar.

A. Your husband has stuck me for a cigar, lady. That certainly is a good question. If I knew the answer I could use it to win a lunch from Clem McCarthy. Speaking of horses, there is a harness horse named the Widower who has that handicap. However, this noble animal overcomes the handicap and wins race after race. The pipe, as I understand it, is to facilitate the horse's breathing.

Q. Who did you say were the best football players ever born in Chicago.

A. Walter Eckersall and Walter Steffens.

Nurses

Graduate nurses are paid from $140 to $150 per month without maintenance. It is not enough. Consider the training necessary to make a nurse who can be depended upon. Then consider that unskilled labor is being offered jobs paying $220 a month minimum. Graduate nurses of experience should be paid at least $100 a week at this time.

Sidelights

After the war there will be a popular priced plane and nearly every family will own one. That's what is continually being said. What puzzles me about conditions in the day when the skies are filled with thousands of popular priced planes is: Where are the planes that have mechanical trouble or run out of gasoline going to fall? A broken down auto just stops on the highway, but a broken down plane has to fall somewhere. Even now with comparative few planes in the air some are falling on houses. I have studied this problem for some time and my only solution still is that a steel net to catch planes will have to be built over the country. . . . Am informed by a resident of Beverly Hills, Calif., that she often rents her milk coat for use in film productions at a rental of $180 a week. I often figured renting milk coats by the day, week or month would be a good proposition. Seems I wasn't far wrong.

Almost Confidential

"Why can't barbers, no matter how skillful they are, ever manage to give a customer a good hair comb?" asks a New Yorker. The barbers can comb hair all right but every man has his own idea as to how his hair should be combed. It is something like putting on a hat. If somebody else puts on your hat you always change it to suit yourself.

First Baptist Church Plans Watch Service

Training Union Will Conduct New Year's Eve Devotion

"Pazewell to 1942 and Looking Ahead to 1943" will be the theme of the annual watch night candle-light service sponsored by the Baptist Training Union of the First Baptist church, Bedford street, at 11 o'clock Thursday night.

The program, directed by Miss Elizabeth Moreland, will consist of two parts. Part one will deal with the farewell to 1942 and will consist of a prayer by Miss Marguerite Thomas; group carol singing; recitation of the Christmas story, Janet Matlick and June Whittaker; and a tenor solo, "O Holy Night," Stanley Golden.

Part two, looking ahead to 1943, will be opened by scripture recitations by the audience under the leadership of Mrs. Richard Matlick and Jeff Judy. Mr. Golden will sing and Mrs. B. L. Pullin will give the prayer. Unaccompanied group singing of hymns and choruses will follow.

The evening's message will be delivered by Miss Moreland and the service will be concluded at midnight with a prayer of rededication led by the pastor, the Rev. Edwin W. Saylor.

This service is open to the public.

Yuhoodi Club Holds Meeting

Mrs. Garnet McClellan entertained the Yuhoodi club Monday night at her home, 312 Washington street. Prizes at cards were won by Mrs. Pauline Thompson, Mrs. Beatrice Smith, and Mrs. Louise Moyer.

According to the custom of the club to send a box to a man in the service each month, it was decided that this month's service box of miscellaneous articles will go to Pvt. Richard McClellan, stationed in Hawaii.

Mrs. Jennie Morris was received as a new member. Other guests were Mrs. Sara Connor, Mrs. Dorothy DuVall and Mrs. Dorothy Perdue.

The next meeting will be held January 8 at the home of Mrs. Moyer, Ellerslie.

PROUD OF HERO SON

Niece of Local Woman Is Wed In Philadelphia

Miss Lee Lichtenstein, 420 Fayette street, has returned from Philadelphia, Pa., where she attended the marriage of her niece, Miss Barbara Liveright, to Ensign Robert B. Resek, United States Navy, on December 24.

Miss Liveright, a frequent visitor here, recently was graduated from Cornell university. Ensign Resek, graduate of Cornell with the class of 1942, is stationed in Washington, D. C.

Bible Class Meets

The Ladies Bible Class of Ridgeley Methodist church held its regular monthly meeting at the church last night with forty-two members attending.

Class sisters were revealed and new ones chosen for the coming year. Following the business session, refreshments were served and games were played. Prizes for the evening went to Mrs. Ray Spangler and Mrs. Ethel Sleeman.

Jessie Hawkins To Become Bride Of L. W. Hanagan

Ceremony Will Be Performed in Washington, D. C., on January 21

Announcement has been made by Mrs. Katherine M. Hawkins, 4618 Fifteenth street, N. W., Washington, formerly of this city, of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Jessie Helene Hawkins, to Lawrence Woodrow Hanagan, son of Mrs. Mary Hanagan, also of Washington.

The Rev. Father Bernard Vogeler, Marist college, Washington, cousin of the bride, will perform the ceremony which will take place at 9 a. m. Thursday, January 21, in St. Gabriel's Catholic church.

Miss Hawkins, now employed at the National Savings and Trust Company, Washington, is a graduate of Ursuline academy and Ursuline Business school in the class of 1941.

Mr. Hanagan, a graduate of Roosevelt high school, is employed at the Harrington hotel in Washington.

YMCA Plans Annual Meeting and Party For New Members

Executive Committee Orders Payment of $2,000 on Mortgage

Plans were begun last night for the annual meetings and membership party of Central Y. M. C. A. to be held in January.

Members of the Y.M.C.A. executive committee and the finance committee met last night in the George Williams room, discussed the 1943 budget, annual meeting, recent membership campaign and decided to hold the annual meeting and party for new members next month.

John J. Robinson, president indicated he will appoint a committee to arrange a party and will also name a nominating committee to choose nominees for next year's board of directors. One third of the directors complete terms each year.

Everett R. Johnson, general secretary, reported that the association's membership now totals 1,175. Of this number 173 are sustaining memberships. Funds realized from these memberships are used solely for the purpose of mortgage reduction.

The executive committee also approved a payment of $2,000 on the mortgage of the institution. In addition to funds raised in the Save the 'Y' campaign last winter, when the mortgage was substantially reduced, this is the second payment of $2,000 to be made on the mortgage this year. A similar payment was made in June.

Among those present at the meeting besides Robinson and Johnson, were E. S. Burke, the Rev. Alfred L. Creager, W. Donald Smith, James W. Bishop, C. Eugene Howell and F. Allan Weatherholt.

Co-operative Pays Dividends on Stock

Checks are now going in the mail for the 2½ and three per cent semi-annual dividends being paid by Southern States Co-operative on its two issues of preferred stock, W. G. Wyss, Richmond, Va., general manager, has announced.

These dividends are for the half year ending December 31.

"All Ages, Sizes" Of Women Taken By War Factories

Ability and Health Only Qualifications for Baltimore Work

BALTIMORE, Dec. 29 (AP)—War plants in the Baltimore area, some of which were once pretty choosy in the matter of hiring women workers, are now taking them in "all ages and all sizes," one personnel manager said today.

A survey of personnel managers in the area indicated that the only qualifications "considered by most plants now were ability and health."

"We take them all ages and all sizes," said an employer of more than 2,000 women. "When they're given work suited to their strength, I don't think there's much difference in output between a 20-year-old and a grandmother, or between a perfect 36 and a girl inclined to plumpness. We're satisfied with what they're doing at our plant."

Another employer said he had no rule at all regarding the age of his women employees, and added:

"In some cases we've found that the older women are more serious about their jobs, and tend to steady down the girls. We don't care what their weight is, either, though naturally foremen pick slimmer women for close quarters work. We still get a pretty heavy flow of applicants, and the foremen are inclined to be a bit choosy about their selections. Other than that, there are no hiring limitations at all."

A meat packer who advertised for female help said he received very few applications from plump women, probably because any prospective applicants were frightened away by the nature of the work, which requires employees to be on their feet all day.

This man said he employed 300 women and expected to hire more soon.

"If they can stand on their feet and listen to a few simple instructions," he said, "they can get work here."

Christmas Party Is Held by Eastern Star

Cumberland Chapter No. 56, Order of the Eastern Star, held a Christmas party after its regular business meeting last night in the Masonic Temple.

Mrs. Addie Glover presided and the following program, arranged by Mrs. May Orr, was presented:

Vocal solo, "Babe of Bethlehem," Helen Lou McKee; reading, "Christmas Presents," Vanita Hinkle; vocal duet, "Angels Serenade" and

"Song of the Ages," Betty and Geraldine Lewis; reading, "Dora Dumb's Christmas Shopping," Louis Hanks.

Yule decorations were featured and refreshments were served. The latter were in charge of Mrs. Paul McElfish, Mrs. Elizabeth Dunlap, Mrs. Alberta Morton, Mrs. Mary Steele and Miss Marie Williams.

Philathea Class Reelects Mrs. Edna Wilt President

Fourth Consecutive Year She Has Been Chosen as Leader

Mrs. Edna Wilt was elected president of the Philathea Bible class of the Grace Baptist church for the fourth consecutive year at the meeting of the class Monday night at the home of Mrs. Horace B. Clark, 567 Patterson avenue.

The meeting was called to order with surprise carol singing by Arlene Wilt, Margaret June Moore and Mildred Abbott. This was followed by an invitational prayer.

Mrs. Jaunice Bilmeyer was welcomed as a new member and Miss Louise Cornell was greeted as a visitor. Mrs. Carl Sankbell, who has recently returned from Texas where her husband, Lieut. Carl Sankbell, is stationed, was reinstated as a member of the class.

Regular monthly reports were given and officers elected for the ensuing year. Those selected to serve were Mrs. Edna Wilt, president; Mrs. Carl Sankbell, membership vice-president; Mrs. Elsi Mae Parsons, fellowship vice-president; Mrs. Gay Clark, ministries vice-president; Mrs. Lee Oda Kinser, stewardship vice-president; Mrs. Cleo McCoy, secretary; Mrs. Ann Alsip, assistant secretary; and Mrs. Catherine Bucy, building fund secretary.

The newly elected officers were installed at a candlelight service which was followed by a prayer of dedication by Mrs. W. R. Keefe, Jr., and the group singing of "I Am Thine, Oh Lord."

During the social that followed the adjournment of the business meeting, jingle gifts were exchanged. 1942 class sisters revealed and 1943 class sisters chosen. Mrs. Wilt, class president, was presented with a gift from the class in acknowledgment of her services.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Clark assisted by Mrs. W. P. Copeland, teacher of the class.

Others attending were Mrs. Pearl Bucy, Mrs. Mary Johnson, Mrs. Margery Runion, Mrs. Mona Bloom, Mrs. Margaret Reynolds, Mrs. Viola Knipple, Mrs. Ina Lee Burley and daughter, Ina Fay, Mr. H. B. Clark, Mr. W. P. Copeland, Mr. Harry Reynolds, Miss Valina Clark and Miss Vera Clark.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Dec. 29 (AP)—Sculptors, painters and print makers living in "Cumberland Valley" have been invited to enter works in the eleventh annual exhibition of Cumberland Valley Artists.

The show will open at the Washington County Museum of Fine Arts in Hagerstown on Sunday, Jan. 31. Original works not previously shown in Hagerstown will be exhibited.

H. R. VICKERS DIES WITHOUT RECEIVING CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

BERLIN, Md., Dec. 29 (AP)—Hampson R. Vickers, 68-year-old city engineer who waited in vain for the only Christmas gift he desired—some word from one of his three sons in the armed forces—was buried today.

Until Christmas day he hoped to hear from his son, Private Howard Vickers, whose last letter came Oct. 26 when Private Vickers was on foreign duty with the army. When word did not arrive, the father lapsed into a coma Friday night and did not regain consciousness. He died Sunday.

A native of the Snow Hill, Md., vicinity, Vickers was city engineer of the Snow Hill electric light plant before he came to Berlin in 1919 to become head of the city's light and water plant. He held that position until his death.

Surviving are three other sons, Sgt. Edward Lee Vickers, United States Army, Lexington, Ky.; Lester Vickers, United States Coast Guard, Norfolk Va., and Charles Vickers, Norfolk; and three daughters, Mrs. Edward C. Long, Wilmington, Del.; Mrs. Chester Magee, Ocean View, Del., and Mrs. George Barnett, Berlin.

$70 Is Paid To Fox Hunters in Washington County

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Dec. 29 (AP)—Washington county commissioners paid $70 to fox hunters between Dec. 1 and 28. The bounty offered by the county is $2 for each fox taken to the county clerk. Thirty-five foxes were shot during the first twenty-eight days of December.

HAGERSTOWN MAN WOUNDS HIS WIFE THEN KILLS SELF

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Dec. 29 (AP)—A 37-year-old cement plant employee killed himself today after critically wounding his wife with a shotgun as she went through the front door of their home.

County Investigator Wayne Sellman said Francis F. Bachtell, 37, shot Mrs. Margaret Bachtell, 39, as she left the house after her husband ordered her to pack her clothes and leave.

Mrs. Bachtell was taken to the Washington county officials, where physicians held little hope for her recovery. They reported she was paralyzed as a result of the wound in the back.

Patrolman James R. Ray of the Hagerstown police said Mrs. Bachtell related that her husband called her at a fraternal club where she was employed and told her to come home, get her clothes and leave the house. Ray added that the woman said she returned, packed her clothing and was leaving to go to her parents' home next door when Bachtell tell appeared with a shotgun, shouted at her fired. She staggered to the pavement and collapsed. Bachtell shot himself through the head, Investigator Sellman said.

The holiday season is always good reason for serving food tasty and fine, but good things to eat are never complete unless you include a good wine!

BALTIMORE, Dec. 29 (AP)—The promotion of Dwight H. Mohr to the rank of brigadier general in the Maryland National Guard and his assignment as head of the state guard—formed to replace the national guard—was made official today by Governor O'Connor.

O'Connor made the appointment and assignment as of Feb. 3, 1941, the date Mohr took command of the state guard on an acting basis following the induction of the national guard into federal service.

Before assuming that command, Gen. Mohr was a colonel in charge of the One Hundred and Fourth Medical Regiment of the Maryland National Guard.

Government Will Not Send Speakers To Furniture Marts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—The Office of Defense Transportation today requested other government agencies not to send speakers or representatives to the Chicago and Grand Rapids furniture marts next month.

ODT said managers of the two marts refused to comply with a request that they be cancelled on the ground that their plans were too far advanced. The letter to other government agencies said:

The announcement said ODT Director Joseph B. Eastman sent a telegram over the weekend to Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the American Furniture Mart, Chicago, denying that he had withdrawn his request for cancellation of the Chicago show.

Eastman had requested cancellation of all furniture marts and sale shows on the ground they would stimulate travel and interfere with essential travel on heavily burdened public carriers.

Tire Trouble Causes
Owner Much Trouble

STAUNTON, Va., Dec. 29 (AP)—Allen Caldwell knelt behind his car and fumbled with a jack. For more than fifteen minutes other motorists passing in the darkness offered nothing more than unspoken sympathy for anyone having tire trouble these days.

Finally a taxi driver stopped. He found Caldwell trapped fast, his thumb caught between the jack and the car bumper, and extricated him. A doctor said the thumb eventually would get back to normal.

Government Drops
Action To Regulate
State Salaries

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 29 (AP)—The joint action of the War Labor Board and the office of the commissioner of internal revenue in dropping federal control over wages and salaries paid by state, county and municipal governments merely confirmed previous unofficial assurances that they would not "press the point" because of legal and constitutional aspects, Governor O'Connor said today.

O'Connor also declared that he had "never had any doubt" as to the final outcome of any attempt by the federal government to regulate state salaries. Maryland, as a sovereign power, could not yield to the government on such a fundamental issue, he declared.

Ralph Glover Weds
Marie Nicklow

GRANTSVILLE, Dec. 29—Miss Marie Nicklow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Nicklow, State Line and Ralph Glover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Glover, were married Sunday in the Methodist parsonage. The Rev. V. R. Gillum officiated.

Theaters Today

"Stand By for Action"
To Open at Maryland

Linking three brilliant Hollywood stars, Robert Taylor, Charles Laughton and Brian Donlevy, M-G-M's "Stand by for Action," which opens today at the Maryland theater, brings to the screen the most spectacular and exciting drama of the sea since "Mutiny on the Bounty."

The picture tells the story of a gallant old destroyer, recommissioned and assigned to convoy duty on the Pacific, and its heroic crew. Taylor plays a young lieutenant and Donlevy his superior officer. With their men they fight off Jap aircraft, stage a successful attack on a battleship, under a smoke screen, and bring a convoy safely into port. Charles Laughton, as an American admiral, has an address that for patriotism and inspiration recalls his famous reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

Its action laid almost entirely at sea on the destroyer, the picture provides many amazing and exciting episodes, made possible through co-operation of the United States Navy. Robert Z. Leonard, usually associated with pictures like "The Great Ziegfeld," directed with deft skill, and photography by Charles Rosher was graphic and, in romantic moments, of great beauty.

Currently playing at the Strand is "Henry Aldrich, Editor" and "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

The principal use of these keen scented dogs is as working companions of military or civilian guards or night-time duty at defense factories, pipelines, dams and other vital installations. The constant watchfulness of a dog increases by many times the effectiveness of the search for spies, saboteurs, or other intruders.

But the training of the dog provides for a certain handling of any situation which may arise. On finding an intruder, he must set up an alarm and menacingly keep the culprit from running away. He is trained to attack and bite only if the quarry tries to run. So, if a military dog gets you at may, you had better stay there until the human sentry arrives.

Also on the Garden program is "On the Sunny Side," with Roddy McDowell, the boy star who scored so successfully in "How Green Was My Valley." Jane Darwell, Stanley Clements and Katharine Alexander also appear in the film.

SCENE FROM "THE BLACK SWAN"

Skeptical Thomas Mitchell seems to be trying to break the romance between Tyrone Power and Maureen O'Hara in this scene from Rafael Sabatini's "The Black Swan," the new technicolor hit starting New Year's eve in a special midnight show at the Strand theater. But rest easy, mates, for Tyrone does more than all right with the fiery redhead in the Twentieth Century-Fox hit, which was directed by Henry King and produced by Robert Bassler.

establish a permanent home and live there, when they were not busy with pictures.

Currently playing at the Strand is "Henry Aldrich, Editor" and "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

The principal use of these keen scented dogs is as working companions of military or civilian guards or night-time duty at defense factories, pipelines, dams and other vital installations. ## WE LIKE EGGNOG RECIPES, BUT...

Sure, well-chilled eggnog is swell! But the well-chilled patriot who's keeping his home at 65° is sensibly serving THIS heart-warming wassail to his holiday guests: 1 lump of sugar dissolved in a little hot water; add 1 piece of cinnamon, several cloves, and twist of lemon peel. Pour in 1 jigger of Carstairs White Seal whiskey. Serve hot water separately, and add to taste in medium wine glass. Just count noses, and make the exact number needed, without waste. ## Expert Says Tot, In His First Cry, Starts To Talk

Continuous and Gradual Development of Speech Follows

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

The baby is born with the physical equipment for talking and begins to use this equipment right away in his first cry. From then on there is a continuous and gradual development of his speech. The time comes when he utters words; later, phrases; and still later, sentences similar to the conventional language of his parents. Even during his first few days we might observe some new sound development in his grunts or cries.

The most noticeable, and perhaps the biggest gain toward his talking comes when he, after a few months, begins responding to persons, usually to his mother. He first smiles in response to her dancing eyes and tender tones. This pleases her and she keeps on trying to get him to smile.

Baby Starts Cooing

There comes another happy day for the mother, several weeks later, when the baby makes a very lovely sound different from any he had ever made before. We call it cooing. At first the sound may occur just once, but later, in a series. Notice that how hard this infant tries to make the sound, moving his head and pursing his lips. Sometimes the sounds just don't come at all. At other times they seem to come easily. If a very loud one occurs the youngster may appear startled at what happened, for he hears it and probably feels the movement of his organs of speech.

Gradual Development

Still later, the infant, while all alone, may coo for relatively long periods at a stretch. Apparently he is very comfortable and happy then. He probably would coo eventually, even if his mother had not tried so often to get him to coo, yet her efforts undoubtedly hastened the development. I recorded elaborate notes on the early speech development of my own children and, last summer, I was able to observe daily my granddaughter during her third and fourth months.

Watch your baby's growth toward speech before he is six months old. Continue to do so till he really begins to talk. You will gain much pleasure and insight from your observations. Then the little tyke will prove the more precious to you and you will conclude that your affectionate and tender tones as he watches your dancing eyes will aid him in his speech development. That is a good time to begin softly singing lullabies to him. Be sure to keep your voice subdued. Let me warn you also not to excite him unduly nor keep him awake when he should be quiet or asleep.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. I find that my boy beginning the second grade cannot read a single word but can rattle off a whole story word for word in a way that made his teacher last year think he was reading.

A. Calmly sit down with him and have him say one of the stories he "reads" from memory. Ask him to read slowly as you run your finger beneath each word or phrase so he may gradually connect the word or phrase with the printed symbols. Make a scrap book with him, cutting pictures from old magazines and pasting them in this scrapbook, you printing appropriate words, phrases or sentences under each picture.

Q. My small daughter plays almost exclusively with three girls seven, nine and eleven.

A. Better these playmates, perhaps, than none at all. But these older girls probably treat her as a kind of toy, babying her and letting her have her way. She needs playmates her age most of the time.

Bee-martin and bee-bird are popular names for the common American kingbird. The kingbird lives chiefly on insects captured on the wing. On many American troopships the soldiers, because of their inactivity, are served but two meals a day.

Grafton Cagers Rout Fort Hill, 46 to 22

Bearcats Square All-Time Series With Sentinels

West Virginians Set Pace All the Way -- Davis Banished on Fouls

GRAFTON, W. Va., Dec. 29—The Grafton High Bearcats, with all eleven players sent into the contest scoring points, routed the Fort Hill High Sentinels of Cumberland, Md., 46-22 here tonight to square the all-time series at two victories apiece.

The Bearcats set the pace from start to finish and were never threatened. At the end of the first quarter, the Sentinels trailed 8-4 while in the second round, Grafton gathered nine points to Fort Hill's four for a 17-8 advantage.

Grafton went on a scoring spree in the third heat to tack up eighteen points to the visitors' five. In the closing session, the Sentinels, playing against Bearcat reserves, managed to garner nine tallies to the visitors' eleven.

Fred Davis, Fort Hill forward, was banished on personal fouls with about three minutes to play. Captain Wally Troutman sparked the Sentinel attack with four baskets while Nicola was high scorer for the Bearcats with twelve tallies.

Sporting News Names Williams Player of Year

Baseball Weekly Honors Rickey and Southworth of Cards

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 29 (AP)—Championship success of the St. Louis Cardinals was reflected today in the selection by The Sporting News of Branch Rickey as the No. 1 executive of the year and Billy Southworth as the outstanding manager in major league baseball.

Without denying Joe Gordon's claims to honors as the most valuable player in the American League, the baseball weekly passed over the New York Yankee second-baseman and named Ted Williams as the outstanding player of the 1942 season.

While conceding that Williams may not have measured up to the standards set for qualification as the most valuable player in his league, The Sporting News said the Red Sox outfielder stood out in a class by himself for individual performances.

Williams led the American League in batting percentage, home runs, runs scored, runs batted in, total bases and bases on balls. His fielding percentage also topped all outfielders appearing in more than 150 games.

Rickey Furnishes Players There could be no doubt about the choice of Southworth for managerial acclaim after Billy the Kid's feat in bringing his fleet-footed youngsters to a national league pennant victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers and an unexpected triumph over the Yankees in the World Series.

Rickey, former vice-president and general manager of the Cardinals and now president of the Dodgers, was given credit for furnishing the players that made the championship possible for Southworth.

Williams and Southworth are the first in the annual citations to be named two years in succession. Rickey was selected in 1936.

In the minor leagues, Bill Veeck, president of Milwaukee of the American Association; Eddie Dyer, manager of Columbus of the same league; and Dick Barrett, pitcher with Seattle of the Pacific Coast League, were named the No. 1 men of the year.

Barrett's Record "Tops" Dyer received top ranking for leading the Columbus Red Birds successfully through the American Association playoffs and in the Little World Series with Syracuse of the International League. Veeck was hailed for promoting and reviving baseball interest in Milwaukee.

Barrett, a veteran of eighteen seasons in professional baseball, was selected because of his remarkable record of yielding only 172 earned runs last season, the best effort in either the majors of the minors, his twenty-seven victories against thirteen losses, and his league leadership with 178 strikeouts and 330 innings pitched.

The 35-year-old pitcher has been purchased by the Chicago Cubs.

Much credit for the team's success must go to Tech's spectacular center, George "Mutt" Manning. One of the lightest pivot men in the conference, only 170 pounds, Manning is rated right up to Alabama's All-America Joe Damannovich. His sixty solid minutes with the Tide, stamped him as one of the great Southeastern centers.

"Basketball Is Finest Sport To Sustain Morale," Says Lieut. Paul D. Hinkle, Great Lakes Coach

By LIEUT. PAUL D. "TONY" HINKLE
Head Basketball and Football Coach, Great Lakes Training Station.

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Dec. 29—(Central Press)—The home front is as important to victory in this war as the battle front. And sports, by its very nature, is a leader in upholding public morale in wartime. It has the support, not only of leaders in athletics and the general public, but of our commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, Admiral Ernest J. King.

Just last August, he said in a speech at Marion, O.: "You people of Marion have a right to such (sports) events. They will help you better fight the battle on the home front during the hard struggle ahead."

Of all sports played in America, basketball, I believe, is the finest to sustain morale. The nation's most popular sport, it attracts more people and uses more players than any other athletic event. Every city and town—even the cross-roads hamlet—has its basketball team. Many of these, unable to support any other sport, have huge gymnasiums, always packed for basketball games.

It's Community Sports Basketball is a truly community sport, and because of that fact, will be relied on by a community even more now that gasoline and tires are rationed. Each community in the country will have to furnish its own recreation. In a large measure, and basketball is made to order for these wartime conditions.

The same thing is true in the service. Here at the naval training station at Great Lakes, we consider sports the backbone of our navy community. From the thousands of boys in training, we have drawn more than 1,000 basketball teams.

Each company at the station has its own team, each service school and regiment has its own leagues. Where we were handicapped for lack of playing area in football and baseball, in basketball we have eleven huge drill halls, each equipped to handle six games at a time. These, plus our gymnasium, give us sixty-seven courts available for play.

Lieut. Paul D. Hinkle

Head basketball coach at Butler university, Indianapolis, for sixteen years and recognized as one of the nation's authorities on the cage game, Lieut. Paul D. (Tony) Hinkle, head coach at Great Lakes Naval Training Station at Great Lakes, Ill., has another crackerjack basketball team this year. Last year the Great Lakes team won thirty-one out of thirty-six games against the toughest of all hardwood squads. Hinkle himself attended the University of Chicago and played basketball, football, basketball and soccer. He was one of only two athletes ever to be awarded nine letters at the Midway. After graduation, Hinkle assisted Amos Alonzo Stagg in basketball. He was appointed head basketball coach at Butler in 1921. Five years later he became head coach there and in 1934 was named head football coach and athletic director. Hinkle also is head football coach at Great Lakes, where his team this fall won seven out of ten games.

Landis and ODT Officials Confer in Capital

Big Leagues Hope To Clear Spring Training Picture

Commissioner Expected To Call Joint Session of Loop Clubs

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

CHICAGO, Dec. 29 (AP)—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, acting to restore order to uncertainty surrounding spring training plans, was in Washington today to confer with the Office of Defense Transportation officials.

Landis had an engagement for 9 a. m. tomorrow with Co-ordinator Joseph B. Eastman.

From the conference is expected to come the first definite guidance for the major leagues, which since their formal meetings here earlier this month have been hesitant about completing plans for spring training.

On his return Commissioner Landis probably will call a joint meeting of the sixteen major league club owners in Chicago for shortly after the first of the year. At that time it is likely the schedule for 1943 will be torn up, and in its place will be substituted a new one in view of the process of preparation.

New Card Delays Opening

The new schedule contains the standard 154 games and the original closing date of Sept. 26, but delays opening date from April 13 to April 27. The last two weeks would be made up by scheduling additional doubleheaders, probably in the form of twilight-night twin balls.

Each club in the two leagues is permitted to play fourteen night games with the exception of Washington, which was granted twenty-one, and this will allow a number of late afternoon and evening doubleheaders.

The Chicago White Sox and the Chicago Cubs, complying with the ODT request for curtailed spring training jaunts, today decided to train together at French Lick Springs, Ind., 278 miles south of Chicago. French Lick, long famed as a mineral spa, can be reached by a daytime ride from here, thus eliminating all use of pullmans.

Inasmuch as it is within fifty miles of Louisville and close to Indianapolis and Evansville, Ind., it is probably the two teams will play exhibition games in those cities.

A delegation from both Chicago clubs will visit French Lick next week to survey sites for baseball diamonds. One already is in existence and others are proposed on a golf course and airport nearby.

Three New States Prepared

Will Harridge, president of the American League, said today he was certain that the majority of his club owners would readily agree to shaving two weeks from the original start of the season. The new schedule would call for twenty-two Sunday dates instead of the customary twenty-four.

In New York Ford Frick, president of the National League, said he understood three optional schedules for 1943 had been prepared to be held in readiness for any eventuality that might force the abandonment of the one already adopted.

But he added no decision had been made, so far as he knew, on any one of the revised programs and expressed the belief that all clubs in the National League would desire to make every effort to open the season April 13 as planned.

Besides the 154-game schedule opening April 27 and closing September 26 he said he believed one calling for 140 games was under consideration and that another provided for a late opening with the season being extended till October 3.

Big Ten Conference Outgrowth of Football

The Big Ten football conference was organized Feb. 8, 1896. Representatives of the Universities of Michigan, Wisconsin, Chicago, Northwestern, Illinois, Purdue and Minnesota met at the Palmer House in Chicago and drafted a set of rules. The latter formed the basis for the present Big Ten (intercollegiate) conference.

Ruffing, Yankee Hurler, Certified For Army Service

Mound Mainstay for Many Years Is Placed in Class 1-B

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29 (AP)—The New York Yankees lost their star pitcher today to a bigger Yankee crew—the army.

Charles (Red) Ruffing, mound mainstay of the oft-times champions was certified 1-B after a medical examination, and goes in for non-combatant duty.

A coal mine accident in Nokomis, Ill., when he was only 15 kept Ruffing, known as Rufus the Red, from a 1-A classification. He lost four toes in the mishap, but went on to become one of the game's great hurlers.

Last fall he completed nineteen years in the major leagues, thirteen with the Yankees.

Pew of his friends knew Ruffing had received his induction papers. He reported for his physical examination with no fanfare, commending:

"There's only one way to feel. We've got a different battle on our hands."

He said he was "a bit tired of baseball anyway."

The Yankee pitcher, six feet, two inches tall and weighing 234 pounds, was A-1 in every respect except for his foot. First Lieut. Hal C. Jenkins, chief medical examiner, said:

Since the baseball season ended, Ruffing, whose home is in Long Beach, has been employed at the Vultee aircraft factory.

Kansas Court Squad Makes Daylight Hops

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (AP)—To alleviate travel conditions as much as possible, Dr. F. C. (Phog) Allen brought his University of Kansas basketball squad to New York in daylight jumps. The party would ride a train until early evening disembark and spend the night in a hotel and then resume its trek the next morning.

TIMELY style means TIMELY morale

Men who are sure of their appearance naturally have poise which their fellow men respect. A TIMELY suit will help keep your morale on the plane it deserves. New fabric ideas in substantial worsteds give you exclusive style. TIMELY Tailoring is quality-minded. Prices are within reach of a reasonable budget.

Vols' Bruising Ground Attack Worries Frnka

Tennessee and Tulsa Stage Final Scrimmages for Bowl Tilt

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 29 (AP)—After winding up their final scrimmages today for the New Year's Sugar bowl game, Tulsa and Tennessee football teams will walk through light plays and concentrate on brainwork in the remaining two days of training.

Coach Henry Frnka at the Tulsa camp at Bay St. Louis, Miss., expressed apprehension over the bruising ground attack of the heavier Tennessee team, while Coach John Barnhill at the Edgewater Park camp of Tennessee was uneasy over the passes of Tulsa's great tailback, Glenn Dobbs.

"Tennessee has been pretty lucky with pass defense this year but we've never met any passes like Glenn Dobbs," Barnhill said.

Vols Charge Hard

The stout Vols, however, were able to stop the two best passers they met this year, Alvin Dark of Louisiana State and Steve Pilipowicz of Fordham. Both were knocked out of competition by Tackle Dick Huffman's driving defensive play.

Declaring "Those Tennessee boys are awfully big," Frnka concluded, "we've worked steadily to get ready for what we expect the most of."

That ground attack of the Vols, the Vols are noted for hard charging and fast downfield blocking which Col. Bob Neyland, former famous Tennessee coach, called the "most important weapon of any Tennessee team."

Frnka feared his squad, which had a week's start in camp on Tennessee, might reach peak condition before the Sugar bowl game and then start over the hill.

He described his men today as physically tough but questioned whether they were tough enough mentally.

Tennessee Near Top Strength

Barnhill, a score of miles away, announced every man in his camp would be ready to play New Year's day despite a few minor injuries but added:

"I think the game depends more on Tulsa than on us. We play a pretty consistent brand of ball it seems to boil down to whether Tulsa hits or misses with passes."

Both coaches will bring their teams here in time to have lunch before the game, Tulsa at Tulane university and Tennessee at Loyola, just a hedge away. After the crowning event of the Sugar bowl season the players will be banqueted and turned loose on their own for a New Year's celebration and dance.

Whirly Is Sure Starter In Widener Handicap

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 29 (AP)—Nomination for the winter's richest horse race, the $25,000 added Widener Handicap, will be released this weekend, with Warren D. Wright's "Horse of the Year," Whirlaway, a sure starter.

Al Sabath's swift racer, Alsab, former of winter racing and will be missed.

The race, reduced because of war conditions to half its former $50,000 value, will be run March 6, the final day of Hialeah Park's season. The track begins operation January 13.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (AP)—It's the little things that come to your mind in thinking back over the sports year, such as:

Kirby Higbe, Brooklyn Dodger pitcher, bending to pick up the ball in the final game at Philadelphia, and freezing in that position as he glanced at the scoreboard and saw that the Cardinals had just scored enough runs at Chicago to ruin any Dodger hopes of tying for the National League pennant.

Joe Louis and Billy Conn, booked to slug it out against each other in a title fight which subsequently was stopped before it started, chummily pairing off and chatting away like long-parted bosom friends.

The way his teammates swarmed over Johnny Beazley after the final out in the final game of the World Series. He took a worse beating from them than the Yankees.

Writers Are Stunned

The look of downright amazement and incredulity on the faces of football writers in the Yankee stadium press box as the first returns of the Boston college-Holy Cross game were received, and the "there ain't no such animal, but there it is" attitude when the final score was verified.

Joe Gordon lying prone and inert for a few seconds after Walker Cooper's throw had nipped him off second to ruin the Yankees' victory hopes in the final World Series game, the picture accompanied by the idea that the names he was calling himself wouldn't look good in a family newspaper.

The obvious sincerity of rugged Hans Lobert as he remarked at the start of the season that the goal he had set for his Phils was to win half their games, and the impression that he was fishing for a miracle.

Fritz Zivich stretched on a rubbing table and spouting words without benefit of comma, period or semi-colon, and frankly puzzled over the personal impression he was getting better as he grew older. And his eventual solution that "I guess I'm getting smarter."

Nova Goes Down

Jack Dempsey trudging down a company street at the Manhattan Beach coast guard station, pushing a bicycle through the rain and mud and dusk toward his office of athletic director.

Pump Al Weil shaking and perspiring under the ring apron at Madison Square Garden and afraid to glance upward where his Marty Servo was giving Ray Robinson a whale of a battle, and Al's repeated question to those watching: "How's he doing?"

The amazement when a hulking giant like Lou Nova went down and stayed down when hit by the apparently routine punches of Tami Maurillo, and the first impression that he was taking the easy way out. (He had a busted rib and miscellaneous other injuries).

The picture of the Navy line not only stopping the Penn backs on the one-foot line, but making them rear upward like an automobile climbing a telephone pole. Leaving the impression that if Army hoped to beat the Middies it had better plot to do it by air.

Tonti Is Gym Instructor

Corporal Joe Tonti, 210-pound former wrestler and professional football player, has been named gymnasium instructor at Will Rogers Field, Okla.

13 Seniors Win Starting Berths In Orange Bowl

Boston College's John Furey Only Freshman in Lineups

By JOHN WILDS

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 29 (AP)—Thirteen seniors will lend steadiness to the starting teams in the Orange bowl football game Friday, but underclassmen are to have their fling.

Boston college and Alabama plan to send one freshman, two sophomores and six juniors out onto the field for the kickoff.

The only freshman to crash the opening lineups is Boston's John Furey, a six-one, 210-pound tackle described by Coach Denny Myers as a "good steady boy."

"Furey is never spectacular," Myers said. "But he's big and strong enough. He's had enough experience after playing 'in every game during the past season. The boy played well, too."

In addition to Furey, the B. C. eleven will include one sophomore, four juniors and five seniors.

Bama Has Experience Edge

Coach Frank Thomas will field an Alabama team with an edge in experience, since eight starters are to be seniors, against two juniors and a lone sophomore.

Both sophomores who won berths will open the game in the vital left halfback spots—166-pound Johnny August for Alabama and the elusive Red Mangrove for the Easterners.

Bama's starting juniors are the tackles, All-Southeastern Don Whitmore and Mitchell Olenick.

The Tide seniors will line up with Babs Roberts and Sam Sharp at the ends, George Hecht and Tony Leon as guards, All-American Joe Demanovich as center, Al Sabo as quarterback; Dave Brown as right halfback and Don Salls at full.

The left side of the Boston line will be manned by Johnny-Charles Furbush, end; Gil Bouley, Tackle, and Pat Darone, guard. Quarterback Eddie Doherty also has another year to play.

Alabama's hopefuls went through their last rough workout this morning, and took the afternoon off to go to the horse races at Tropical Park. Thomas said the squad will taper off tomorrow and the next day, now the peak of condition has been reached.

An afternoon drill occupied the Bostonians, who also must work carefully now or face the danger of staleness.

PAY NO HEED TO IT
IT MAY NOT be particularly ethical, but some players try what they consider subtle methods of conversation to influence your bids and plays. Under this heading come such things as calling an intermediate card "the small diamond" as it is led from dummy if they want you to refrain from covering it, whereas they would call it by its exact size if they hoped you would cover. If we play with such people at all, it may be well to become extreme realists for the time being and pay no attention to those remarks.

When West saw his partner play his lowest heart on the K lead, he did not make the fortuitous shift to a club, which would have beaten the contract two tricks, but sent out his trump 9 in a hopeless effort to cut down diamond ruffs. The declarer took two spade tricks and then called for the "small diamond" from dummy.

East had been ready to put his 10 on that card whenever it was led, just on general principles, but when South called it "small," he decided South intended to go up with some honor, and he himself might just as well conserve his own cards. So he put on the 2. Imagine East's feelings when South let this run, and it forced the A. The club 5 came back to the A—all too late, as a spade put South in to use his diamond K and Q for club discards from the dummy. Then he ruffed one club, led a heart to the J and A, took the returned heart 3 with the 10, discarding his last diamond, then cross-ruffed a heart and a club.

If East had covered that diamond 9 with his 10 or J, South would have had to come in with his K or Q, and then could have discarded only one of dummy's clubs. Hence he would have been set by one trick in clubs, one in diamonds and two hearts.

Public Alarmed As Streams Near Flood Stage

Steady Rise in Creek and River Follows Heavy Rainfall

With last October's flood still fresh in the minds of local merchants and residents in the flood zone here, steady rainfall throughout this area, which melted snow in the mountains, caused considerable alarm as the Potomac river and Wills Creek neared flood stage late last night.

Throughout yesterday afternoon it became evident that streams were gradually filling far above normal stage. Flood gates in the river at Riverside Park were opened, but soon thereafter both the river and creek continued to rise.

Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer and members of his crew took half-hourly readings of river and creek gauges throughout the early evening and night. The rise in local streams was reported gradual, but at 11 p. m. was not regarded as alarming.

Swamped with Calls

Police, newspapers, the city hall and other places were swamped with telephone calls by residents from all parts of the city seeking information.

At 11 p. m. the city engineer's office reported that the creek and river were rising about two to three inches an hour. At that time about three feet of water would be required for the river to reach flood stage and about the same additional depth necessary before Wills Creek started backing through the sewers.

Many merchants and residents in flood zone sections of the city prepared to watch the condition throughout the night. Preparations were made by many business houses and residents to move furniture, stock and equipment and to erect the necessary barricades and prepare sandbags.

One Inch of Rain Falls

The flood scare became evident yesterday as rain fell steadily for the fourth successive day. Precipitation, according to the gauge atop city hall, was 1.11 inches for the fifteen and a half hour period from 8 a. m. to 11:30 p. m.

Rainfall for the four-day period mounted to 1.95 inches. According to reports received from the West Virginia Pulp and Paper mill at Luke, a rise in the Potomac of five inches was recorded on the gauge between 2:30 and 11 p. m. Rain was still falling at that point.

Mayor Sharpless, of Kittamiller, advised Rizer at 11 p. m., that the Potomac rose one foot during the six hours and twenty minutes between 4:40 and 11 p. m. A steady rain also was falling in Garrett county.

Rizer pointed out that if the rise continued at this rate throughout the morning there is possibility of a flood here.

100 Per Cent Run-off
The city engineer stated that the ground was well saturated after four days of rain and that if the rainfall continues it would be a 100 per cent run-off.

Lester Bolinger, of the city engineer's office, stated at midnight that if the rain continued to fall throughout the morning at the rate it fell between 8 and 12 o'clock last night Cumberlanders had better make flood preparations.

The gauge readings here for the last four hours last night were:

Johnson St.	Balto. St.
8 p. m. .... 4.6	5.1
10 p. m. .... 4.9	5.6
11 p. m. .... 5.1	5.8
12 midnight ... 5.3	6.0

At midnight the Potomac was about two and a half feet below flood stage at Paca street near the Blue bridge, which spans the river between Ridesley and Cumberland.

River Floods Low Areas
The Potomac went out of its banks and flooded a portion of the James E. Miltenberger farm on the Frankford road in West Virginia. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

McMullen Reports On Savage Dam

Tells Commissioners Plans Call for Ceasing Work by February 1

John J. McMullen, chairman of the Upper Potomac River Commission appeared before county commissioners yesterday and reported on the Savage River dam project. McMullen explained that no new information has been obtained about the possibility of completing the project during the war, and as far as is known work will cease February 1, the date all WPA projects are to be stopped.

Work is underway on the task of moving and dismantling machinery and equipment, and all safety precautions possible have been taken to preserve the status of work already completed, McMullen explained.

Following the meeting, McMullen visited the dam and last night reported there was no danger in that section from any high water and there seemed to be less water in Savage river last evening than there was the day before, indicating a quick runoff of melting snow and rainfall.

MISSIONARY — Miss Edith Moore, who will speak at the annual missionary convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance church Sunday, January 3, at 7:30 p. m., at the tabernacle, 123 South Lee street, has served in India and only recently returned to this country.

Missionaries Will Convene Sunday

The Rev. Frank Wyre Will Deliver Opening Message

The Rev. Frank Wyre, of Osceola Mills, Pa., will deliver the opening message to the annual missionary convention of the Christian and Alliance church Sunday, January 3, at 7:30 p. m. at the tabernacle, 123 South Lee street. The convention will close the following Sunday.

The Rev. Wyre was pastor of the Christian and Alliance church when it was located in South Cumberland about thirty-three years ago. Two missionaries will be in the party of Bible students and instructors who will participate in the sessions.

Miss Edith Moore, a missionary of India, and the Rev. Gordon H. Smith, of French Indo China, will speak Sunday. The Rev. Smith went to Indo China in 1928 while Miss Moore has had extensive missionary service in India. Services will be held each evening at 7:30 o'clock during the convention.

A second feature of the program will be the presentation of a farce skit, "Reuben and Rachel." Group singing of songs of a patriotic nature also are scheduled on the program.

Seven Groups Given Victory Tax Exemptions

Act Providing for Five Per Cent Deduction Is Effective Friday

When the Victory Tax provisions of the Revenue act of 1942 become effective, Friday January 1, seven classes of wage and salary payments are exempt from withholding, and consequently employers making such types of payments will not be required to withhold and transmit deductions on such account, according to information received from Washington by the local internal revenue office.

Exemptions Are Listed

Payments which are exempt from the provisions of withholding by the employer consist of remuneration paid:

1. For services performed as a member of the military or naval forces of the United States, other than pensions and retired pay.
2. For agricultural labor.
3. For domestic service in a private home, local college club, or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority.
4. For casual labor not in the course of the employer's trade or business.
5. For services as an employee of a non-resident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, if such individual, partnership, or corporation is not engaged in trade or business in the United States.
6. For services as an employee of a foreign government or a wholly owned instrumentality, or
7. For services performed as an employee while outside the United States during the major part of the year.

The amount of the Victory Tax to be withheld is five per cent of the excess of each payment over the withholding deduction allowable.

The amount of the deduction allowable is $624 for the year, or $12 in the case of weekly payments, $24 in the case of bi-weekly payments, $26 in the case of semi-monthly payments, and other payroll periods in proportion.

In lieu of an exact calculation, however, employers may elect to withhold specified amounts roughly corresponding to the five per cent in accordance with tables set forth in the Revenue act. Thus, if an employee's wages are over $12 but not more than $16 for the weekly payroll period, the amount of the tax withheld under the "wage bracket" method would be ten cents, in lieu of the exact five per cent. The amount which may be withheld, in lieu of an exact five per cent of the payment in excess of the withholding deduction allowable, is shown, for any payment bracket in Table A of optional withholding.

To Whom Act Applies

The term "employer" includes any person for whom an individual performs any service, of whatever nature, as the employee of such persons. The term "employer" embraces not only persons and corporations engaged in trade or business, but organizations exempt from income tax, such as religious organizations, educational institutions, clubs, social organizations and societies, as well as the government of the United States, the states, territories, and the District of Columbia, including their agencies, instrumentalities, and political subdivisions.

The act requires that the tax to be withheld shall be withheld by the "person having control of the payment of such wages" by deducting such amount from such wages as and when paid, and applies to officers and employees of the governments, agencies and instrumentalities of the United States, the states, territories and the District of Columbia.

Every individual is an employee if the relationship between him and the person for whom he performs services is the legal relationship of employer and employee.

Stores Will Remain Open Saturday; Banks Opposed to Holiday

Local stores will remain open all day Saturday, January 2, but city and county employees will observe the double New Year's holiday, it was learned yesterday.

Governor Herbert R. O'Connor yesterday said he is unable to reach a decision on whether or not Saturday will be proclaimed a legal holiday in the state.

Banks throughout Maryland are not in favor of Saturday being declared a holiday, as was December 26, for the end of this week is the end of a quarter and also the end of the fiscal year for the financial institutions, the governor stated.

O'Connor said he was waiting for some concrete indications from merchants in the state before making a definite announcement.

No Mail Delivery On New Year's Day

The post office will observe the usual holiday schedule Friday, New Year's day. There will be no window service, no deliveries by city or rural carriers and no service at Station A on Virginia avenue Newspapers and letters will be dispatched and distributed to post office boxes.
